SENATORS WILL TALK IT TO DEATH Rather Than Let It Pass, at the Present Session.

THE BRUNSWICK HARBOR

Will Be Reported Favorably to the Sen-ate, and Probably Passed-The Indian War Pension Bill.

Washington, July 19 .- (Special.)-The anti-option bill was debated for some time in the senate this afternoon.

Senator Washburn, who has charge of the bill, is attempting to get a vote upon It this session, but there are a dozen senators who are determined that it shall not be voted upon until next December. They claim that such important legislation should not be adopted without thorough consideration and debate. While there are enough votes to pass the bill, should it come to a vote, the opposition will prevent a vote by long continued debate, and the best opinion is that the bill will go

The Brunswick harbor bill, which passed the house yesterday, will perhaps pass the senate this week. Objections had been made to the plan proposed by Colonel Goodyear, by the chief engineer of the war department, and the senate committee, therefore, has declined to report the bill up to this time. It was introduced in the senate at the same time as in the Senator Gordon called this morning upon the chief engineer, and prevail upon him to withdraw his objections on the ground that it would cost the government nothing unless the work proved successful. The engineer consented and the senate committee has agreed to make a favorable report at once.

Senator Gordon's Health. nator Gordon is in better health than he has been for a year past. He says that his campaign work down in Georgia has benefited his health materially, and that as soon as congress adjourns, he will return to the state and enter into the campaign in the tenth. He believes Mojor Black will win the race in 'he tenth over Watson by a good majority, notwithstancing the belief which, he says, is prevalent

Mr. McKeighan, the third party congressman from Nebraska, made a speech in the house last aight, in which he snnounced himself against the subtreasury vote upon the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill, making this appropriation, was much closer than bad been anticipated. It was 109 to 121, or but twelve majority against the appropriation. All the Georgia members voted aga pst it.

While the appropriation was stricken out, the house nevertheless adorted the ing of the fair on Junlays. The vote on this stood 61 against to !47 for Sunday closing. The world's fair appropriation was the main point of disagreement in the sundry civil bill, and as soon as this was disposed of, the house disposed of the bill by asking a conference of the senate on its amendment. The conference committee of the two houses will meet tomorrow, and begin the consideration of the bill. Should the senate conferees agree to let the world's fair appropriation go, an agreement can be reached very soon. But should they conclude that if they refuse to recede the house would accept the amendment appropriating the $5,000,000, then there might be a deadlock which would prolong the aession for a week or two. While the vote in the house was clos that was due to the absence of a number of members who would vote against the appropriation. The house will never accept it, and the senate sooner or later. will recede. There is some talk to the effect that the Chicago people would not accept the appropriation coupled with the Sunday closing amendment. If that be true, and such a statement is inade, then the senate would quickly recede. Although many complications might arise, there is a feeling among members of both ses that the matter will be settled by Friday, and that the resolution providing for adjournment of congress on Monday

The house will pass it tomorrow, and it will go at once to the senate. E. W. B.

HATCH'S ANTI-OPTION BILL

Again Before the Senate, but After Amer

Mr. Morgan sustained it in a long argu-debate on the resolution continued two hours.

Mr. Morgan sustained it in a long argument, and it was opposed by Messrs. Sherman and Allison. Mr. Sherman moved to refer it to the committee on finance. It went over without action, and, at 2 o'clock p. m., the anti-option bill was laid before the senate. Mr. Wolcott said that he did not know of any more important question to be considered by the senate that the resolution which had just been under discussion, and he moved that the senate again proceed to its consideration.

Mr. Washburn asked the presiding officer, as a parliamentary question, the effect of Mr. Wolcott's motion, if it were carried. He was told by the presiding officer, Mr. Manderson, that it would displace the antioption bill, and by Mr. Cockrell that it would kill the bill. The motion was rejected—yeas, 7; nays, 50.

The yeas were Messrs. Brice, Gibson, of Louisiana: Gibson, of Maryland; Hiscock, Sanders, Vest and Wolcott.

The presiding officer laid before the senate a message from the president returning, without his approval, the senate bill to amend the act establishing a circuit court of appeals and to define and regulate the jurisdiction of United States courts in the matter of Indian depredation claims. The message was read and was, on motion of Mr. Vest, referred to the judiciary committee. The effect of the first provision of the bill, the president thinks, would be to defeat the general purpose of congress in constituting an intermediate court. His chief objection, however, is to the third section, which provides that no appeal shall be allowed from the judgment of the court of claims in these cases. There were 30,000.

A number of them involved $100,000 each, a few as much as half a million and one over a million. He could not approve the bill, which absolutely denied to the government an opportunity of appealing from judgments in such cases.

The anti-option bill was again taken up and was read in full by the clerk. Sundry amendments to the anti-option bill were presented by Messrs.

proper time.

Mr. Stewart made an argument against the bill, but he soon drifted into bimetallism. After Mr. Stewart had closed his remarks on the anti-option bill Mr. Hiscock obtained the floor, but was not prepared to proper today.

The senate proceeded to vote on amendments heretofore offered by Mr. Washburn, and they were all agreed to without ques-tion. A substitute was offered for the bill by Mr. George on part of himself, Mr. Coke and Mr. Pugh. The substitute was ordered The bill was then laid aside informally and a reprint was ordered with the amend-ments agreed to and those proposed. After disposing of a number of bills on the calendar a message announcing the action of the house on the sundry civil appropriation bill was laid before the senate, including the house provision in relation to the Pink-erton detective force.

Mr. Allison said in regard to the latter that he had no doubt of its meeting the approval of the senate, but that its phraseology might have to be modified and that it should be in its appropriate place. On his motion, therefore, that amendment was disagreed to and a conference then agreed to on the whole bill. to on the whole bill.

to be justice of the United States supreme court.

Mr. Shiras is a leading member of the bar of Pittsburg where he was born sixty years ago. He was a member of the famous class of '53 at Yale and graduated with distinguished honors and after stduying law was admitted to practice in 1856 in Pittsburg, where he has since resided. He has never held public officers nor has he ever served on the bench. At the instance of his friends he was a candidate for the United States senate at one time, but was defeated by Mitchell. His nomination was warmly endorsed by prominent republicans and business men of Pittsburg and by Representative Dalzell, in whose district he lives. He is a pronounced republican, but has never been very active in politics. The president and attorney general have only a casual acquaintance with him and as the latter expressed it he was selected solely on account of his high legal attainments and personal integrity.

New York, July 19.—Papers were filed to day in the United States circuit court of this city for the removal of the suit of the Western National bank, of New York, against the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company from that state supreme court to the United States circuit court. The suit is begun for the recovery of a promissory note given on January 18, 1892, by the Danville company, by Waiter G. Oakman, president, for $200,000. The note fell due on June 21st, and the amount, with interest due since that date, is involved.

Nearly All the Members of the Hational Committee

HAVE REPORTED READY FOR DUTY.

Some Opposition Has Sprung Up to Harrity as Chairman,

BUT LET THE CANDIDATES SAY

Whom They Prefer for That Position and He Will Be Elected-Georgia's Representative Quoted.

New York, July 19 .- The national democratic committee will meet in this city tomorrow evening for the purpose of organizing and laying out the preliminary work of the campaign. Nearly all the members are already in the city and the greatest interest is being manifested by prominent democrats from all over the country in the meeting of the committee. Although the first meeting of the committee is called for tomorrow evening it is expected that owing to the notification cer-emonies the committee will merely effect a temporary organization and adjourn until the following day.

On Wednesday the committee will effect its permanent organization and immediately following this will come a conference between the committee and Cleveland and ence are still in embryo and its nature will depend much on the wishes of the two can-didates. It is though by some that the latter gentleman may not deem it wise to meet the committee in formal session and in that event the conference will be an in-formal one, held with individual members of the committee after the adjournment of Slight Opposition to Harrity. Indications are still favorable to the seection of William F. Harrity, of Pennsylvania, as chairman of the national comsylvania, as chairman of the national committee, but there has suddenly developed a slight opposition to the selection of the Keystone State as the leader of the campaign. This opposition, so far as it has become manifest, is confined to the southern states, where Cleveland is the strongest, but where respect for Tammany is most potent. The committeemen who express doubts as to the wisdom of selecting Harrity are perfectly frank in stating press doubts as to the wisdom of selecting Harrity are perfectly frank in stating that they fear that Harrity's selection would be displeasing to the regular New York democracy, and that every attempt should be made to conciliate the militant democracy in the great pivotal state of New York.

York.
Secretary S. P. Sheerin, of the national committee, arrived in the city today and opened temporary headquarters at Fifth Avenue hotel.

Let the Candidates Choose. A careful canvass of the national com mitteemen in this city tonight shows that, whatever doubts there may be in some quarters as to the wisdom of Harrity's selection, there is a unanimous desire to select as chairman the man who will be most agreeable to Cleveland and Stevenson. An instance of this is afforded in the position of Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution and national committeeman from Georgia. Mr. Howell was one of Hill's most loyal supporters in the south, but he states that he is favorable to the selection of a chairman who is the choice of Cleveland and Stevenson, even though that man be Harrity, of Pennsylvania, and so the chairmanship may be said to depend entirely upon the choice of the party candidates and there is a general impression that Harrity is the choice of election, there is a unanimous desire to the party candidates and there is a general impression that Harrity is the choice of these gentlemen since Whitney has posi-tively declined to be considered in this

NO SUNDAY SHOW.

The House Concurs in the Senate's World's Fair Amendment. Washington, July 19.—Filibustering began in the house over a resolution reported from the committee on rules for the ap-from the committee on rules for the appointment of a special committee to inquire into the administration of election laws in New York city by United States officials. The republicans wished to extend the inquiry to the cities of Albany and Troy and when they were not accorded an opportunity to offer an amendment to that effect declined to record their votes.

Mr. Catchings's resolution was agreed to—yeas, 187; nays, 0.

The house then resumed in committee of the whole consideration of the senate amendments to the sundry civil bill. In view of the fact that the hour from 11 to 12,0 clock had been consumed in other business Mr. Holman sought to secure an hour for debate. Objection was made.

The senate amendment increasing from $316,000 to $500,000 the appropriation for the government exhibit was non-concurred in—129 to 65.

All the amendments increasing appropriations for the world's Columbian commission were non-concurred in in bulk.

Mr. Durborow moved to concur in the senate amendment appropriating $5,000,000 in souvenir 50-cent coins to aid in defraying the costs of completing the world's Columbian exposition.

Mr. Atkinson, of Pennsylvania, called up his amendment providing that no part of the appropriation shall be paid until satisfactory assurances are given that the sale of intoxicating liquors shall not be permitted on the grounds except for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes.

On a point of order raised by Mr. Bankhead, of Alabama, the chair gave it as his opinion that in order to amend the senate amendment it was necessary to couple that motion with a motion to concur in that senate amendment.

Mr. Atkinson contended that he had the right to have his amendment voted upon as a separate proposition, and not coupled with a motion to concur.

The chairman deciding against him, Mr. Atkinson took an appeal.

Subsequently and after a good deal of confusion Mr. Atkinson withdrew the appeal and moved to concur and to adopt his amendments.

The chairman deciding non the proper concurs in the senate p ring in the senate amendment as proposed to be amended.

It was rejected—11 to 189.

Mr. Patterson, of Tennessee, called up the amendment appropriating $50,000 of the $5,000,000 in order to gather statistics as to the progress of the negro race. Lost. After several other amendments had been called up and defeated the question recurred on Mr. Durborow's motion to concur in the senate five-million-dollar amendment and it was lost—91 to 116. The amendment was therefore non-concurred in.

Nays—Messrs, Alderson, Amerman, Atkinson, Babbitt, Bartine, Barwig, Bergen, Bingham, Bownan, Brawley, Brosus, Buchanan of New Jersey, Burrows, Bussey, Bushnel, Cadmus, Caminetti, Capehart, Castle, Catchings, Chipman, Clark of Wyoming, Coburn, Coolidge, Curtis, Daniel, Dalzell, Dingley, Dixon, Doan, Hollver, Durborow, English, Fithlan, Forman, Funston, Geissenhainer, Gorman, Hare, Harmer, Harter, Haugen, Harmen, Harter, Haugen, Harman, Hitt, Hooker of New York, Hopkins of Illinois, Houk of Ohio, Houk of Tennessee, Hull, Johnson of Indiana, Johnson of North Carolina, Wilson, Orleil of Pennsylvania, O'Neil of Missouri, Patton, Payne, Pendleton, Perkins, Peters, Pierce, Raine out of order.

W. A. Stone, of Pennsylvania, moved that the committee concur in the senate Sunday closing amendment and upon a distribution of both sides. W. A. Stone, of Pennsylvania, moved that the committee concur in the senate Sunday closing amendment and upon a division, much to the surprise of both sides, there was a majority in favor of the motion, the vote standing 78 to 74. Tellers were ordered and again the committee decided to concur, the vote standing 102 to 72.

The announcement was received with applause.

Mr. O'Neill, of Missouri, made a strenuous effort to add to the bill as a new section, a proviso making it unlawful for any officer of the government authorized to make contracts or any officer of the District of Columbia to contract with any person, firm or corporation which employse Tinkerton detectives or any other association of men as armed guards, and no employe of such agencies shall be employed in any government service or by any officer of the District of Columbia. It could not come in as a separate section without unanimous con-trict of Columbia. It could not come in as a separate section without unanimous consent, and to this Mr. Oates objected.

Mr. O'Neill then offered it as an amendment to the clause appropriating for capital police. His purpose was mainly to prevent the employment of Pinkertons in the District of Columbia during the Grand Army encampment, as well as at the world's fair. After half an hour consumed in securing a quorum, the amendment was agreed to—146 to 22. The committee rose and reported the bill to the house.

The recommendation of the committee in regard to senate amendments was agreed to with the exception of those amendments pertaining to lighthouses, to the geological survey and to the world's fair.

pertaining to lighthouses, to the geological survey and to the world's fair.

All the lighthouse amendments were nonconcurred in. The yeas and nays were ordered on Mr. O'Neill's Pinkerton amendment. The noise in the hall was so great and the inattention to business so general that the amendment had to be read four times, and the speaker had to answer half a dozen parliamentary inquiries before the clerk could begin with the call of the roll.

The lack of attention irritated the chair, and when, after the clerk had called the first name, Messrs. Johnson, of Indiana, and Breckinridge, of Arkansas, rose to parliamentary inquiries, he peremptorily refused to recognize them, and ordered the clerk to proceed, an action which called forth a sotto voce endorsement from Mr. Reed, of Maine: "Tyrannical, but right."

Mr. O'Neill's amendment was agreed to—yeas, 159; nays, 33.

On motion of Mr. Bankhead, the senate amendment was concurred in, which descrete form amounts appropriated by the

On motion of Mr. Bankhead, the senate amendment was concurred in, which decreases (from amounts appropriated by the house) the amounts appropriated for the geological survey.

The vote then came upon the proposition to non-concur in the senate amendment appropriating $5,000,000 for the aid of the world's Columbian exposition, and it was agreed to—yeas, 122; nays, 110.

The Sunday closing amendment was then concurred in—147 to 61.

A conference was ordered, and Messrs. Holman, Sayers and Bingham were appointed conferees.

Mr. Forney, of Alabama, presented the conference report on the fortification appropriation bill, and it was agreed to without opposition.

The senate amendments to the general deficiency bill were non-concurred in, and a conference was ordered.

On motion of Mr. Wheeler, of Alabama, the bill was passed authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee river at Deposit, Ala.

The house then adjourned.

THE CHOLERA RIOTS.

Graphic Description of the Horrible Affair

London, July 20 .- A Berlin correspondminister of interior has prohibited the sale of The St. Petersburg Gazette, owing to its publishing true accounts of the cholera epidemics, denying the official versions. The Szaft Listck publishes the details of the Saratoff riots. It states that the populace, infuriated by hearing that the reports of cholera were invented by the doctors, only waited for a pretext for a riot.

In the first place a young man, mistaken for a doctor, was attacked, and when a friend tried to protect him both were stoned to death, their bothes being northby man-gled. The mob then spread over the city, wrecking hospitals, the houses of doctors, hotels and apothecary shops and releasing cholera patients from the various places in which they were confined.

which they were confined.

Nurses were cruelly beaten by the mob, and deadly attacks were made on the hospital attendants and surgeons. The imperriled men begged for mercy on their knees, but the mob was pittiess, and killed all whom they could find. One doctor took refuge in the belfry of a church, and the mob was only prevented from entering the building and killing him by the priests standing in the doors of the church, holding aloft crucifixes, and loudly exhorting the maddened people to desist.

A man dressed as a cholrea patient, and covered with lime, then appeared, and told the excited crowd that he had just escaped from a hospital where they wanted to the excited crowd that he had just escaped from a hospital where they wanted to bury him alive. The mob thereupon rushed about like fanatics to do further mischief, and the condition of affairs grew so serious that troops were summoned to quell the disturbance. The people then stoned the soldiers, who fired several volleys into their midst, killing or them. Troops were throughout the town. The cathedral was guarded with a cannon, and the town had the appearance of a military camp.

CYCLONE AND VOLCANO.

Hard Time.

Rome, July 19.—The province of Raigo, in the northern part of Italy, was swept by a terrific cyclone today. An enormous amount of property was destroyed and it amount of property was destroyed and it is reported many lives were lost. The village of Polesalla, on the bank of the river Po, seven miles south of the town of Ravigo, and containing nearly four thousand inhabitants, was almost completely wiped out of existence. Many of the villagers were buried in the ruins of their homes. Troops have been sent from Ravigo to render assistance.

Catania, July 19.-The terror of the peo ple living in the vicinity of Mount Etna is increasing in consequence of the renewed violence of the eruptions from the different craters of the volcano and prolonged subterranean rumblings, which are becoming more and more frequent. The poorer in-habitants of Nicolosi, who have been driven from field work by the advance of lava, are being supplied with free bread and soup. The houses of the town were everely shaken tonight, many windows be his counsels, if they do not adopt it. They have personal wrongs to avenge, and cannot be expected to support Gladstone until they know something of his plans. If Gladstone refuses to be frank and candid, they can refuse to vote for him, and he will be beaten on his own resolution, and will fail to carry the vote of a want of confidence, or will carry it by so absurdly small a majority as to make his accession to office anything but certain.

"If he consented, under the threats of nominal adherents, to tell the house what sort of Irish parliament he wishes to create, he would immediately find himself in this practical dilemma—either the plan would dissatisfy the moderate section of his English and Scotch supporters. This is what renders it doubtful whether Gladstone can carry a vote of a want of confidence, if at all, by more than a light majority. It would then remain for the government to decide whether to resign or to continue to hold office till such time, necessarily not remote, when it could reappeal to the country. The government, therefore, must stand its ground, and invite Gladstone to do his worst."

SAW THE QUEEN AT LAST.

Rix, the Aged Negress, Sobs Her Thanks to Victoria.

London, July 19.—The old lady named Rix, whose lifelong desire to see the queen has been so pathetically related in recent publications, was presented to her majesty at Windsor this afternoon. The aged negress was overwhelmed by the realization of her hopes, burst into tears and fell on her knees, sobbing her thanks as she was brought into the royal presence. "Thank God, I see the queen mother," she exclaimed.

God, I see the queen mother, she exclaimed.

The queen kindly conversed with the old woman, asking her history, and seeme I ruch interested in the story. She also examined critically the quilt which the old negress had made with so much pain, and which was now presented. The queen expressed her admiration for the quilt, and gave her autograph and photograph in return, after which the aged visitor was dismissed. Rix partook of luncheon at the castle, and departed praising the Lord for the honor which had befallen her.

HOW THEY SPENT THEIR MONEY.

in Mexico.

San Antonio, Tex., July 19.—(Special.)—A dispatch was received here today from Saltillo, Mexico, stating that Lester H. Usale and J. E. Turner, the bank robbers of Nashville, Tenn., who were arrested in the former city four days ago, have been fully identified by J. H. Clark, chief of police of Nashville, who arrived this morning.

Gale was teller and Turner bookkeeper for the City Savings bank of Nashville. They absconded on July 2d, taking with them $14,000 of the bank's money. The money was missed on July 3d, and detectives were at once placed on the men's track. A large reward was offered for their capture. They were traced to New Orleans, and were known to have boarded a Southern Pacific railroad train for the west. The two separated at Houston, Gale going to Schulengerg, Tex., where he remained one day. He arrived here on July 6th, and was joined here on the following day by Turner, who came in on the International and Great Northern train from the north.

They stopped at the Menger hotel and exhibited big rolls of money. They remained here three days, and rolled high, spending money freely in carriage rides and questionable resorts. Gale rân up against a faro game in the Silver King saloon here and lost $2,000 in one night.

The two left here on July 10th for Mexico. They spent two or three days at Monterey, where they introduced themselves as American capitalists from St. Louis seeking investments. They were wined and dined by the American colony of Monterey, and then they took their leave for the City of Mexico. They stopped off at Saltillo, where they were arrested upon complaint of Carl Lucie, brother of City Marshal Gus Lucie, of Austin, who got on the track of the fugitives in this city and came up with the men at Saltillo. The necessary papers were secured and the men will be returned to Nashville at once.

Mortality Alarming.

City of Mexico, July 19.—The yellow fever scourage continues unabated at Vera Cruz and the rate of morality is alarmingly large. Hundreds of people are leaving the city. In the foreign colony there have been many deaths and those who escape the quarantine regulations have left their homes and escaped to this city and the interior. W. W. Aperson has arrived here, having just recovered from an attack of yellow fever. Every precaution is being taken to prevent the fever from spreading. The government has established strict quarantine regulations.

HEREDITARY INSANITY

Memphis, Tenn., July 19.—The second day of the inquiry into the mental condition of Alice Mitchell showed undiminished public interest, the audience being somewhat larger than yesterday. Promptly at 8:30 o'clock the defendant entered the courtroom, accompanied, as on yesterday, by her two brothers. The jury was promptly on hand at 8:30 o'clock but the judge did not arrive until nearly 9 o'clock, when court was at once convened. Most of the testimony introduced tended to confirm the impression of hereditary insanity having been transmitted from mother to child.

meet in their twenty-fith annual convention.

There are fully seventy-five of these clever gentlemen and more are expected on every train.

This morning the association was called to order by President W. G. Browne, of Atlanta, who introduced Rev. Dr. Bays, who opened the proceedings by prayer. Dr. E. B. Marshall, of Rome, extended the visiting dentists a cordial welcome. Colonel Moses Wright delivered the address of welcome in behalf of the city.

Mr. Atkinson, of Brunswick, responded in behalf of the association, assuring the citizens of Rome that they appreciated the hospitality of the people.

Dr. W. G. Browne, the president, then read an address to the association, which was full of kindly admonition and words of wisdom. The convention then took a recess until the evening session at 3 o'clock. In the afternoon the association had a short business session, hearing the reports of committees.

Tomorrow will be devoted to the reading of papers, essays and speeches by various members.

The meetings are held in the Masonic temple.

Birmingham, Aia., July 19.—Jacob Kate, a constable at Pratt mines, went into a negro cabin this morning to arrest Alex Frazer. The negro at first sumbitted, but changed his mind and drew a pistol to resist. A duel to death ensued and both men were killed.

If He Can Run the Mill Two or Three Days-Negroes Applying for Positions at the Mills.

Pittsburg, July 19.—An Associated representative made a tour of the Homestead mills today, being the only newspaper man who has succeeded in gaining admission behind the now famous fence which sur-rounds the company's property. He found about one hundred and fifty men at work, most of them new employes. Four furnaces in the armor plate department were charged today, and complete resumption in this department will take place tomorr. The melting department has been fired but it will take seven days to get branch of the mill running again.

The assistant superintendent of the plant said that a number of men had applied for employment today, and that he expected quite a number of such applications tomorrow. This official stated that the company had, up to this time, been unable to secure enough mechanics to complete the neces sary repairs, and the works were started without them. He is confident that were the mill to resume operations successfully for day or two, many of the former employes would return to their old positions.

A large number of colored men arrived in Pittsburg today and visited H. C. Frick in squads. They carried satchels, and were evidently strangers in the city. Their ultimate destination is surmised to be Homestead, but up to today they had not been

The Arrested Strikers.

Pittsburg, Inly 10—It was expected that Burgess McLuckie, of Tomestead, would have a hearing this morning on his application for ball, but his attorney, W. J. Brennan, had failed to notify the prosecution of his intention and his case, therefore, goes over until tomorrow. Burgess waived hearing before a magistrate and was remanded to jail until tomorrow, when his application for ball will be heard before Judge Magee. None of the other indicted men have surrendered. They are all reported to be willing to do so, but have refrained under advice of the advisory board, to await the result of the application for ball in McLuckie's case.

Hugh O'Donnell has disappeared. He was reported several days ago to have gone east on a mysterious mission in the interest of the strikers, but he has not put in an appearance anywhere since and now many rumors are affoat, all based on the supposition that he had private information of the intended proceedings against him and departed in son. There was a large number come in on each train, and all feeling good over the prospects of a pleasant time. A cannon was brought up from Augusta, which was taken charge of by the Troup Artillery, and several salutes fired in honor of the old veterans. In the evening they all went to the courthouse, where an address of welcome was delivered by Captain H. H. Carlton, and responded to by J. W. Lindsey, on the part of the soldiers. Both speeches were received with cheers, and the speeches were received with cheers, and the band struck up "Dixie," which brought forth the old rebel yell. The roll of the Third Georgia was called,

The roll of the Third Georgia was called, and a large number answered to their names. The committee on the barbecue had everything in good shape. Two pits had been dug, 200 feet long, and covered over to keep the rain from stopping the cooking. Four tables, a thousand feet in length, had been put up under the shade of the large oak trees. Two kettles, then, will make over a hundred gallons of hash, and 125 sheep and pigs were piled up near the pits, and being prepared to be cooked. A rain came up, but it did not stop the old veterans from enjoying themselves.

Tomorrow morning they will form at the armory of the Clarke Rifles and march to the courthouse, where Mayor Tuck will turn over the keys of the city to them, and every one will try to make their visit pleasant. There is a large crowd expectat to be present, and there will be plenty for all. Each old soldier has some new teles to tell, which makes the occasion very anjoyable.

France put the ball right over the plate and Gans thumped it. The sphere rolled towards Graham, who fumbled long enough for Gans to make first safely. Ulrich's pretty sacrifice sent Gans to second, but a moment later Gans was thrown out at third by Dixon. Broderick went out at first on France's good fielding.

Donaghue made a clean hit for a base, but Long flew out to Niles. Donaghue was thrown out at second as he tried to make a steal. Had he waited a second Hill's safe hit would have enabled him to go to third. Motz's drive to short forced Hill out at second.

Graham came next with a clean single into right, and was advanced to second ito right, and was advanced to secon by Dixon's hit to left. France smashed the ball hard and Niles let it go through him. That gave Graham a chance to score and he did so, Dixon going to third and France reaching second on the play. But both men were left by Donaghue's out at first.

Atlanta tried hard, mighty hard to get mother run, but the Birminghams wouldn't ave it. Several times men were on second ad third and once Hill was thrown out at the plate. Every man had his eye on the ball and it came in contact with the bat time and time again, but the Magic City boys were sharp in fielding wbrk.

Birmingham never worked so hard for a game as she worked for a run.

But the run couldn't be made.

But the run couldn't be made.
Every man of the team tried to knock the ball off the earth, but it always landed safely with an Atlantian. Base stealing was an impossibility with them. In fact, every play they made was met with a stronger play by Morton's men.

In every inning both teams strained every nerve to cross the plate.

But as the goose eggs piled up, one after another, and the men died after hard, sharp, energetic playing, the spectators became more and more absorbed in the game.

The crowd that saw the game in Tom White's parlors was a large one, and every one who went came away highly pleased. Every movement of the men was faithfully reproduced and the Atlanta audience had almost as good an observation of the game reproduced and the Atlanta audience had almost as good an observation of the game as the people who occupied the Birmingham grand stand.

Birmingham, July 19.—(Special.)—Another great game of ball was played today between the Gate City boys and the Birmingham Blues, the score standing 1 to 0 in Atlanta's favor. Today Graham scored the winning run. With two out he hit safe between McMahon and Niles on to left field. Dixon's hit advanced him to second. The next man was France, who knocked a hot grounder which went through Third Baseman Niles's legs and on that error Graham safely crossed the rubber. Dixon died at third by Donaghue's out at first. Several brilliant plays were made, among them a stop by Niles, several pickups by McMahon and Long's hardrunning catch of McMahon's fly which looked like a two-bagger.

Economy in their use ly as the fresh frist.

The Atlantas will play the last game of the present series this afternoon and will be home in the morning.

In the afternoon they will open with Macon and the games will be hot and well worth seeing.

When Atlanta went to Macon last Burbridge took two out of three and he now has the gall to say that he is going to do the same thing again. But the team the smiling George runs against this time ain't the pudding he feasted on a week or two ago. George may count himself luckier than handsome if he keeps his promise.

The new grand stand, though not finished, will be ready for occupancy and will accommodate a large number.

Henry Kuhrt has already sold over a hundred grand stand tickets for tomorrow, while half a dozen boxes have been taken. The crowd will be a big one.

Atlanta and Birmingham will have a hard battle this afternoon.

Birmingham will put forth every effort to get one of the three, while Morton will try to make it three straights.
The game will be reported in detail at Tom White's parlors.

Teddy Now Smiles.

Macon, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—It is not considered sound baseball policy to roast the home umpire in the newspapers, and for this reason the decision rendered by Umpire McLaughlin this evening is passed without comment and I will not say that it was Umpire McLaughlin's fault that Macon lost the game. Certainly if two decisions had been otherwise the score would have been a tie in the ninth inning. As it was, however, Teddy had a winning way with him this afternoon, and certainly his men played good ball. So did Macon.

The congressional talk has had a tendency, naturally, to draw attention from the race for the legislature, but a good deal of work is being done by the friends of the different candidates, nevertheless. Hon. Ed Martin's candidacy for re-election naturally meets with favor on all sides. Hon. Porter King has definitely decided to become a candidate and will make his announcement in a few days. If Fulton Colville decides to run-and his friends are strongly urging him to lo so-be will prove the strongest kind of a candidate, for nobody is more popular than he. Captain Bob Broyles hasn't been saying much of late but his friends have been putting in some good work for him and they feel confident of his election. Then Judge Rodgers is making friends on all sides as the special champion of the Soldiers' Home and expects to be one of the fortunate ones.

Among those present at this meeting are Supreme Chancellor E. A. Williams, of New Orleans; grand chancellor of New York, Israel Derricks, and grand chancellor of Alabama, J. W. Tuggle.

The membership in Georgia is ower eight hundred knights, and the strength of the national order is not less than ten thousand active members in good standing and fellowship.

There will be four divisions in the parade today. They will be Damon, of Augusta; Feay, of Savannah; Joshua, of Savannah, and Keystone, of Atlanta.

They will form in procession this morning and march out to Piedmont park where an interesting prize drill and other exercises will occur.

The installation of officers will occur tonight in the Odd Fellows' hall.

COLORED DEMOCRATS-They Will Ratify the Action of the Chicago

Convention Next Saturday Night.

Convention Next Saturday Night.

The colored democrats of Atlanta will meet next Saturday night for the purpose of ratifying the action of the Chicago convention.

They will also discuss in a caim and dignified way the principles of the party of which they belong, and in addition to giving their reasons for the faith that is in them they will talk over their plans for an active and energetic crusade during the present campaign.

The club has rapidly grown since the organization, and has not only increased in numerical strength, but in the zeal and activity of the membership. It is composed of intelligent and patriotic men who are not only interested in the welfare and promotion of their race, but in the principles of the democratic party, which they recognize as the party of the people.

They have demeaned themselves in a worthy and dignified way, and the result of their course has not only inspired their enemies with respect and fear, but has added to their ranks many new converts from the more intelligent number of their race.

It is a fact that the negroes of Atlanta and throughout the south generally, as they study the situation, and understand more fully the attitude of the republican party, are beginning to waver in their allegiange to their so-called friends, and to realize that the people of the south are more sincerely their friends and are far more ready and willing to advance their interests than the politicians of the north.

The movement should be encouraged and the citizens of Atlanta should give to the cause their hearty co-operation and support. They can show their interest in the club by attending the ratification next Saturday night. It will occur at Samaritan hall, and an interesting programme of exercises has been arranged.

The president of the club is J. T. Williams, and the secretary W. M. Morgan. They are both intelligent men and their interest in

The president of the club is J. T. Williams, and the secretary W. M. Morgan. They are both intelligent men, and their interest in the work of the 'elub. together with their efforts to promote it in every respect, commends them to the esteem and confidence of every democrat in Atlanta.

Henry Parks and Maud Curtis, young people who were engaged and about to be married, were in a boat on a pond. The boat capsized in water twenty feet deep. Twice they sank, and the third time, as they went down, they were locked in each otner's arms with lips meeting in a last kiss. People on the shore saw this tragic death. Parks was twenty-three and Miss Curtis nineteen, and she was strikingly pretty. Three hours later their bodies were found, still in a close embrace.

POLICE NEWS CONDENSED.

Jim Jones, a young white man, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Crim and Patrolman Cook. Jones is thought to be one of the young men who were engaged in the shooting affair at the Atlanta university on July 4th. A general fight was engaged in between a white and a colored ball team. In the melee a negro boy was shot and a negro man was badly cut. Since then the officers have been looking for Jones.

Moore Peas, a brother of Palmer and Inex Peas, who are in the Marietta jail on a charge of murder, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Looney, Green and Cason on a charge of horse stealing. The detectives have captured and have in their possession a horse and a mule that were stolen.

Bill Dumas, the negro who sports so many allases, and who was arrested by the city detectives, thought to have been wanted in Jackson county for rape, turns out to be a burglar and bigamist wanted in Monticello, Jasper county, Georgia. He will be returned to that place.

A small blaze at Stephens's planing mill, on Peters street, called out the department yesterday about noon. An alarm was sent in from box 54, but before the department reached the place the fire was under control.

Lee Peacock was before Recorder Calhour yesterday, and pleaded strongly for mercy.

"The trouble swith you, Lee," said the judge, "is, you won't quit. You haven't worked in over two years—not a lick."

Lee became indignant. "Why, judge," he explained, "in that time I've worked every street in Atlanta."

The audience tittered, and Lee went to the stockade.

Pred Baughn, the young painter who was committed to jail for wife beating about three weeks ago, was released on bond yesterday morning. The case was a strong one against Baughn, and his bond was fixed at $2,500 by Recorder Calboun. For some reason it was reduced to $250 yesterday, and it was at once signed.

Wearing on the Man. Wearing on the Man.

The man of the house took to the sofa in the sitting room with a newspaper directly after breakfast, while his wife went on with the house cleaning, says The St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She was dismantling the front room, and while he perused the sporting column she carried past him, in turn, seven chairs, three tables, a desk, four footstools, all the pictures, a piano stool, a bookease, and the rest of the furniture. Then she lugged in a pair of steps and a big pail of water, and began to clean. "Maria, do you wans my assistance?" said the man just then, rising and folding his newspaper. "Not just yet, dear," said Maria. "Well, then, I think I'll leave you," said he, and he started for the office. On the way down he told three men that if there was anything that wore him to the skin and bone is was that confounded house cleaning. Said he: "We are in the midst of it now, and I tell you I'm about used up."

MASS OF CORRUPTION ON CUMBERLAND.

The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia to Give Rates

TO INDUCE THE SOLDIERS OF THE STATE

To Spend a Week or So on the Islanda The Atlanta Rifles Are Already There.

The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia representatives are endeavoring to influence the military of the state to select a week in which to camp on Cumberland island. The idea is for the soldiers to take their tents along and to provide accommodations for their mothers, wives and sweethearts. Several companies have already signified an intention of taking advantage of the proposition, in which event it will certainly result in their having a delightful time at a nominal expense.

It is understood that those who prefer taking their meals at Hotel Cumberland can secure the same at reduced rates. The idea will without doubt be taken advantage of by several of the minitary organizations in the state. The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia officials say that they feel confident that in each instance a greatly reduced rate can be secured in favor of the party. The Atlanta Rifles are spending this week on the island and frequent reports from them indicate that they are having a splendid time.

CHIEF CLARK HERE.

Atlanta. E. E. Clark, grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, spent yesterday in Atlanta. He came over from Charleston, and left last night for Birmingham.

A called meeting of the conductors was held during the day. Chief Clark made an address and talked over the railroad situation. He remarked that he had never been called to Atlanta to adjust a grievance, and observed that it spoke well for the conductors or the managements of the roads running into the city.

City.

During the day Chief Clark was shown over the city by a committee consisting of Conductors Martin, Daniel, Armacross, C. W. Mangum and O. Reneau.

PAYING OFF-The Atlanta and Florida Sends Out a Pay Car

Receiver Garrett, of the Atlanta and Florida, and Auditor Algee go out today with a pay car to settle up the May pay oll.
Captain Garrett has had charge of the road only ten days as receiver. When it was returned to him the company owed nearly $10,000 on account of back pay and in paid vouchers and had not a dollar in the treasury.

Captain Garrett made up his mind to pay off the men the first thing and he is proceeding to do it.

On account of the large increase of business incident to the opening of the Montgomery extension, the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery has for the past month been very much in need of additional motive power. This condition, however, will not long continue, for on last Saturday Colonel Hawkins purchased of the Richmond Locomotive and Machine works five ten-wheel, consolidated, extension front freight locomotives, all to be delivered during August.

ing August.
These engines were built according to the specifications of the Richmond and Danthe specifications of the Richmond and Danville railway, and were nearing completion when that road was placed in the hands of a receiver. They are sixty-ton engines, of the very latest type, and with all of the latest improvements. They were built especially for heavy freight service, and are the largest engines in use in the south.

As soon as received they will be placed by the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery and Savannah, Colonel Hawkins was especially fortunate in finding five engines so well adapted for the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery traffic ready for immediate delivery. Usually it requires from three to six months from date of order before engines can be placed in service.

from date of order before engines can be placed in service.

In addition to these, the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery has leased two locomotives from McDonough & Co., of Savannah, to be used in construction, thus relieving two of the company's engines now in that service.

This addition of seven engines to the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery motive power will enable the company to overhaul and put in first-class condition all of its engines for its heavy fall work.

Death Would Have Been Weld Spent Hundreds of Dollars Without Relief. Procured Cutioura. Wonderful Change in Three Months. Completely Cured in Six.

During the war I contracted some kind of a disease which brought me almost to the point of death. My right arm and leg were one mass of corruption, eating into my very flesh. Swelling and itching terribly, causing most excruciating pains. The torture was awful. 1 had spent hundreds of dollars in futile efforts to get well, or even relief, for I was suffering so that death would have been a happy release. Rev. J. G. Ahern, who was the pastor of Hickley circuit, urged me to procure the Cuticura remedies. Upon their arrival. I began to use according to directions, and in less than three months I noticed a wonderful change. My appetite was good, my breath was sweet, and as I continued to take the medicines the good work went on and on. In six months from the time I started, I was completely cured. The Cuticura remedies did the work, and my skin became perfectly smooth and clear, and there is now not the slightest appearance of the disease. I would say in conclusion to all suffering from any kind of blood trouble, don't be deceived, but strike at the fountain head, and get Cuticura remedies, even if you have to send a thousand miles for them.

STANTON'S TOUR

aich Spread Out Before Him.
A Seaside Sunset.

Cumberland Island, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—The clang of bells, the scream of the steam whistle, the mist-blurred lights of Atlanta in the growing distance, the pattering of rain upon a Pullman roof; then—dreams; a glad awakening in the sunshine of Brunawick; a chair on the breezy deck of Brunswick; a chair on the breezy deck of a sturdy steamer, cleaving her way in a track of light to Cumberland, and then— the salt sea welcome of Cumberland itself. The story of Cumberland has been told by many pens, and the world has viewed t in varying lights, but it is like one other tory of which the world is never weary—is always "new."

The Cumberland bound people on the teamer City of Brunswick were an interting study to me. There I met the editor of The Billville Banner, accompanied by a free pass, one wife and seventeen re-lations. Three millionaires from the north were discussing the beauties of the marshes Stretching leisurely off in a pleasant plain To the terminal blue of the main.

Four ministers of the main.

Four ministers of the gospel, reaping the benefits of a "pound party," which had been tendered them in return for a year's services, were talking so feelingly of their absent congregations that I almost felt like theirs were collection to like taking up a collection to make them feel at home. Doctors, lawyers, real estate men, insurance agents—in fact, men of all trades and professions—jostled me with their views and interviews, and soon this varied assortment of ocean-bound humanity was landed with a hurrah at Cumberland. Is not the dream of the poet realized in this spot?

Is not the dream of the poet realized in this spot?

I know a little isle
Where exiled angels might a while forbear
To mourn for paradise.

Today, in the splendid surf, a judge of one of our courts, throwing dignity to the four winds, said, as he turned a neat somersault in the breakers: "Ain't she bully? Let her roll!" A minister responded, as he came gurgling up from the bosom of a billow: "Praise God from whom all bleasings flow!" and a streaming congregation in abbreviated skirts and breeches roared a glad "Amen!"

Some one started a story of a phantom ship yesterday. A young man who had a good character and a certificate of membership in the Atlanta branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, declared that he had seen a ghostly vessel riding the breakers; saw the spectral sailors lashed to the shivering shrouds, while the ghostly captain stood at his post, like the boy on the burning deck. Then he saw the fated vessel dashed to pieces on the rocks and sand, and he fancied that he heard the cries of the drowning above the moaning of the sea.

The story excited interest, and last night.

The story excited interest, and last night, The sea.

The story excited interest, and last night, as a storny moon was struggling in the shadowed skies, a half dozen of the curiously inclined, piloted by this young man with a certificate of good character and Young Men's Christian Association membership, waited on the white beach, far up from the bathing department, for the appearance of the phantom ship. And did they wait in vain? Some say that they did, but, certainly, in the dark middle of the night, when the moon had retired behind a convenient cloud, something—misty, vague and wrathlike—a ghostly pattern of a storm-struck ship did loom up on the sea, and was tossed toward the land. Vivid imaginations saw the spectral sailors in the wave-swept shrouds, the pallid captain on the burning deck, and the wind wailed wonderfully like the voices of souls in distress. May it not be that some "Maid o' the Mist," who has roamed the billows of the awful deep in search of a drowned lover, waves a wand of magic over the dark waters at nightfall, and enacts a drama of shipwreck before a phantom audience?

I found a man yesterday who could tell drama of shipwreck before a phantom andience?

I found a man yesterday who could tell something new of Dungeness. His father, he said, had known and served Light Horse Harry Lee when the famous fighter so-journed at the spot which is now historic. Lee, he said, was fond of taking long strolls on the beach, and on one occasion, in going over his battles, he drew a map of them on the sand. Then, pointing here and there with his sword, he would indicate the position of the enemy—the attack, the victory or the retreat. While so doing, the encoaching tide suddenly washed over his pictured plan of battle, and completely obliterated it. Light Horse Harry smiled, and sheathing his sword and baring his brow to heaven, said: "So may the Almighty blot from the book of remembrance the cruel deeds of war, and with the tears of angels efface the sins of the nations."

On another occasion while walking through the woods General Lee threw his swortd at a hawk flying low and the steel penetrated its body, the bird falling dead at his feet.

From the window where this is written I am witnessing a drama in the western skies. The sun, tired with the travel of the day, is wafting it farewell, and as if in pity of the world he leaves in darkness, is painting a picture for it in myriad colors. A black couch with fringes of gold and having silver and purple curtains, is waiting to receive him, and now his parting smile has made a glory in the heaven. One broad and golden beam

Like a lane into heaven.

Tike a lane into heaven. Streams from the west to east and makes a path of living light along the land and sea. The farthest, faintest clouds take on a million hues—silver and gold and ruby and amethyst are blended in the glowing skies; the white wings of a gull soaring o'er the transformed marshes and wet with sea glitter and glisten as if fringed with diamonds, and the dim, far sails of the ocean-veering ships gleam in the splendid lights. And even when the sun has drawn the curtains of the dark about him, the glory lingers and gives his radiant memory to the night. And this is a sunset on Cumberland!

And now from the vast of the Lord will the waters of sleep
Boll on in the souls of men.

Manager Morgan, of the Hotel Cumber-

Boll on in the souls of men.

Manager Morgan, of the Hotel Cumberland, with his splendid aides de camp, is making life on the island "a joy forever." Nearly all the cities of the country have representatives here, and blest are the cities that fly their flags in the breezes of Cumberland; for here—

If smiles like a sweet enchanter Whose lips are divinely blest, The bells of a far Atlanta Are lulled in a vale of rest.

And a carven and gemmed decanter Is brimming with Georgia's best!

The car from the depot has arrived and men and fair women are crowding to the register, where Mr. Pierson is beaming on them and on me as, driven into a corner, I close this letter standing with the paper against the wall.

Professor C. P. Wilcox, of the State university, is one of the leading spirits in the fun at Cumberland. He is accompanied by his charming wife and a host of pretty grandchildren.

The Argument in the Case of L. D. Lowe

Charged with Cheating and Swindling.

Mr. L. D. Lowe, the president of the Lowe Bros. Cracker Company, a corporation that was placed in the hands of a receiver last Monday morning, was yesterday arraigaed before Judge Orr.

The accusation ngainst the defendant was that he had failed to execute a mortgage to G. W. Brooks after the latter had turned over to him certain promissory notes. It was charged that the notes were destroyed by Lowe, and that he had refused to execute the aforesaid mortgage, acting, thereby, in bad faith with his creditor, and making himself liable on the criminal side of the court for the offense of cheating and windling.

thereby, in bad faith with his creditor, and making himself liable on the criminal side of the court for the offense of cheating and windling.

The evidence in the case was fully brought out yesterday afternoon, but the argument was postponed until today. It will be resumed this morning at 8:30 o'clock, and the decision of Judge Orr will be rendered before noon. The defendant is under a one thousand-dollar bond for his appearance, and was not, therefore, committed to jail.

The defendant's testimony denied the charges of the prosecution, and insisted that there was no desire whatever, on his part to defraud or injure his creditors in any way. He had torn up the notes that were given to him by Brooks, but had executed another note in their stead for the full amount of the others. He had furthermore offered to give him duplicates of the other notes, if he desired to hav them, and to take back the new note that he had given him. He denied that he had refused to execute the mortgage in favor of Brooks, and stated that he had merely declined to execute it, under the advice of his counsel, until he was authorized ty the board of directors. He claimed that Brooks was still in possession of his note, and that he recognized the existence of the delet in his favor. There was no desire on his part to defraud him out of the mortgage, and he had merely delayed to sign it without refusing to do so. Before he was aware of it, proceedings were entered against him, and an application was filed to put him in the hands of a receiver.

After the defendant's statement, and a short reply from the prosecution denying the principal facts set out, the judge announced that he would allow the case to go over until today, and the counsel could inneet him this morning at 8:30 o'clock to finish the argument.

The defendant is represented by Mr. Morris Brandon, and the prosecution by Mr. C. D. Maddox.

RETURNS TO THE LAW.

Colonel H. H. Perry, of Gainesville, Ouits Colonel H. H. Perry, of Gainesville, Quits the Ministry.

Gainesville, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—Colonel Henry H. Perry, who, up to two years ago was considered one among the best equipped lawyers at the bar, and who suddenly turned his back upon the profession and entered the ministry, has just as suddenly and unexpectedly returned to his first love, and for a season, at least, his voice will again be heard in the courtroom. He is an able, conscientious lawyer, and the brotherhood welcomes him back with open arms.

New Orleans, July 19.—Various cotton presses have agreed upon a tariff of charges which most of them have signed already and others will doubtless determine to uphold. About the only difference is in the rate on cotton for speculation. An increase of 5 cents per bale is charged on account of the concessions recently granted labor. Different presses have already made contracts with leading patrons covering the year beginning September and so the combination tracts with leading patrons covering the year beginning September and so the combination rate will not be widespread in its effects. The most important feature of the combination is the fact that it shows a desire to combine among the presses and it is generally asserted that within a year most of the presses will be under one management. The serious obstacle to previous deals has been opposing views as to the value of the property concerned.

Hall Superior Court in Session

Hall Superior Court in Session.

Gainesville, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—The July term of Hall superior court met Monday morning at 1 sociock, with His Honor C. J. Welborn presiding, and Solicitor General Howard Thompson at his post.

The grand jury is made up of representative men from all sections of the county. Mr. Hiram B. Smith was elected foreman. A great deal of business is on the dockets. Among the number of visiting attorneys are Colonels B. H. Hill, Atlanta; D. W. Blair, Marietta; D. W. Meacham, Danielsville; W. I. Pike, Jefferson; J. J. Kimsey, A. Ford, J. W. H. Darden; fifth sergeant, Wiley Childers; first corporal, V. Martin; second, H. Willis; third, F. Lasner; fourth, Walt Taylor; surgeon, T. H. R. Wilson; chaplain, J. G. Martin.

Death of Dr. W. E. Spier. Thomson, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—Dr. W. E. Spier, of this place, died at the residence of his father, Mr. W. E. Spier, at 3 o'clock this morning. Dr. Spier graduated at the Dental college of Atlanta in the spring of 1891, and went to Texas and practiced dentistry with success until June, 1891, when he returned to Georgia, married Miss Hassle Petit, of LaGrange, and located at this place, his old home, to practice his profession. He had contracted malaria while in Texas and was soon stricken down, from which he never recovered.

Death of Mr. Strickland.

Death of Mr. Strickland.

Carrollton, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—
Mr. J. H. Strickland, secretary and freasurer of the Autcheson Manufacturing Company at Banning, died last night at the home of his father-in-law, Hon.

It will be admitted that there 's no more est advocate of the free coinage of er than The Constitution has been and proposes to be. Nevertheless, The Consti-ertion is not discouraged by the failure the house to pass the senate free coin bill and it sees no reason why any rat should be discouraged. The all was defeated only because a few inityidual democrats, representing Wall et and eastern interests, placed themes under the lead of Tom Reed and ted with the republicans. The demoorganization cannot be held responthis for the freakishness of individuals advertise themselves as democrats rely for the purpose of getting into ns where their influence will posa money value.

Great reforms do not carry in a day. y move slowly. For nearly eight rs a majority of the people have been favor of tariff reform, and yet, accordg to all appearances, tariff reform is per off than ever. Up to 1888, the ple had only the tariff of 1880 to In the forty-eighth congress the struck out the enacting clause e Morrison bill. But was it? there any reason then, or is there y reason now, why democrats should their party on the ground that tarof reform has not prevailed? Tariff rem is not yet in sight. Even if Mr. land is elected next November, it sible to place the country on the basis of tariff reform, for the rean senate, pledged to high prctecon, will stand in the way.

is that any reason why democrats ild desert their organization and go ato a third party? We have never heard h an argument advanced, even by the les of the people's party, but it just as sensible, just as reasonable as ent based on the failure of the cratic house to pass a free coinage both. This is wise. It is far wiser than me of the third party people in the south, who, by weakening the democratic organization here, give aid and comfort to the republicans in carrying out their desperate programme; in placing the ballot boxes in control of the federal government; in creating offices for swarms of political deputy marshals; and in perpetuating the robber tariff and the demon etization of silver.

We believe that the white voters of Georgia are too patriotic to imperil the best interests of the state by crippling the democratic party.

Trouble in the South.

The Constitution has made no attemp to conceal from its readers the unpromis ing condition of affairs in the south, a condition that has grown out of unwise agitation, intemperate legislation and pernicious litigation. We could not conceal it if we would, for, in one shape or an other, it is bound to make itself felt It is not confined to Georgia, but covers the whole territory which has then the theater of such remarkable industrial development during the rast fifteen years

The Galveston News draws a striking picture of this situation. It is a picture in which the colors may be somewhat too thickly laid on, but, in the main, it is true enough to give pause for thought. Referring to the bright prospects which existed a few years ago, and comparing it with the outlook of today, The Gaives ton News remarks that "the people of the south, through their political agrations. their legislatures and their courts, have alarmed capital and allenated the confidence of enterprising investors." Conservative capital puts its veto on the spirit of enterprise "when it sees along the southern borders yellow fags advertising an epidemic of a vast, complicated pestilence of political, legislative and indus trial distempers."

Our contemporary reviews the condition of affairs in the whole south, and thus concludes:

In Texas a further step on the line of energetic confiscation was taken in railroads run to earth and afterwards hauled into the state courts to be operated in the interest of political favorites, regardless of the rights of capitalists who paid for them. The south, including Texas, has about lost her credit. Money is scarce and high in Texas and through-out the south, while it is abundant and cheap in the east and other portions of the counin the east and other portions of the country. Our politics, our legislation, our judgments stand up to condemn us, and we must pay the penalty. With the refusal of the people, of the legislatures, of the courts to protect investments in southern railroads, in southern coal mines, in southern lands, there comes a want of confidence, scarcity of money, high interest, hard times. We must pay well for our own folly. That is a debt from which o politician or court can pro ect us.

This is plain prose. There is more truth than poetry in it. Our people seem to have deliberately thrown away an opportunity such as no section of this country has eyer had. Quick-witted capital had seen its opportunity and had pushed and was preparing to push railroads into every promising part of our territory. This was merely the beginning, for railroads are simply the pioneers of that larger industrial development which counts for every-

At the critical moment the crusade against the corporations began, not a reasonable or wise crusade-for that bad taken place some years before-but a wild and witless agitation stirred up by demagogues, some crazy for office or netoriety, and others crazy for fees. The Univeston News credits the railroad commission of Georgia with the trouble, and gives it a slap in passing, but the conclusions of The News are wide of the mark There was and is nothing in the commission calculated to hamner railroads. The board was established in 1878, and has given entire satisfaction. Since then the state has enjoyed its most profitable period of railway development.

No; the trouble was not in the commis sion; but in that mischievous spirit which, taking advantage of the sentiment that established the commission, continued the crusade against "soulless corporations," whipped and agitated the opposition to railroads into fury, threatened them in the legislature and in the courts, and made senseless attacks on a combination of railroad interests and capital which had for its purpose the building up of Georgia and this whole section as the east and west have been built up.

The result of that agitation is the present situation. Our railroad system has gone to pieces and capital has run to cover. Atlanta has been budly hurt; Georgia has been hurt; the whole south has been hurt. Those who are fond of wrecks and paralyzed interests may have a fattening time, but the people will

It is a long and costly route over which we have gone to get back to the motto of the state-wisdom, justice and moderation. If we are not there yet, let us get there as promptly as possible and stay there.

A New York newspaper man has recenty interviewed several millionaires in the endeavor to find out whether they are happy or not.

Mr. Chauncey Depew thinks it all depends upon what a man does with his money. If he spends it for his own pleasure he will find that a fortune of $100,000,000 will not buy him any more of the things a man wants than a fortune of $1,000,000 will buy.

The late Cyrus W. Field was worth $8,000,000 five years ago. At that time he was very cheerful, but had no exaggerated idea of the value of money. A few weeks before he died he said that his life was a wreck, his fortune was gone, and he regretted that he had not been firm enough to make his boys carn their own living, so they would have known the value of money.

Russell Sage admits that he has as much money as he can use, but he annot quit work. He is all the time trying to get hold of as much money as people credit him with having. He spends very little, and practically his fortune is in the hands of others, who get more benefit out of it han he does.

A very wealthy lady in New York worries herself sick trying to give away her money where it will do the most good. Among our great millionaires there are aen of all sorts, but they all unite in saying that a man with a very moderate for-tine gets as much genuine enjoyment cut scores of millions. And they all say that a rich man has to worry and work like a slave to hold on to what he has and increase it. But why try to increase it? A man cannot help it. The acquisition of money becomes a trade, and a man is proud of his success in it and wants to maintain his reputation. He cannot take a rest. If he does, people will say that he has lost his grip. So he has to keep right on working just as hard to get a little more as he worked when he started out to make his first thousand dollars. A man has to be very strong-minded to give up business entirely when all his cronies in Wall street are urging him to try new ventures.

The Convention Today.

This morning the state convention of the people's party will assemble at the capitol.

The delegates are hopeful and appar ently harmonious, and they have mapped out a big programme.

Behind these delegates are many hen est Georgia farmers who have decided to cut loose from the democratic party and see what they can accomplish in a new organization. We have devoted not a ittle time to the study of the avowed purposes and objects of these reformers. ut we are as far as ever from dircover ing any good reason for the existence of their third party. The reforms they advocate are, in the main, democratic in their essence, and if their cuampions bad remained in the democratic ranks and concentrated their influence they would have persuaded the democratic party to substantially endorse their demands and make a successful fight on that line. Indeed, the democracy is moving in that direction as rapidly as is consistent with saftey.

But these impatient reformers insist that the democracy is to some extent to blame for existing evils, aithough they know very well that the party has not been in power for thirty-two years. They are determined to have a party of their own, and, now that they have organized it, we feel tempted to ask them what they propose to do. You are a bright and clever set of fellows, as a rule, you gentlemen of the people's party, but you cannot prove how he division of the democratic party will bring about good results. If, when you and the democrats united found it hard to win, how can half of the old party under a new name be stronger than the whole?

You are making a big mistake. Force Bill Harrison is in the field with a solid republican party at his back, and yet you propose to divide the white vote of the south. If you poll a heavy vote, you will simply make Harrison's election a certainty; and if you poll the biggest vote you hope for, you will throw the election into the house, and Cleveland will be our next president.

We are fighting for nearly every reform lemanded by the people's party, and it discourages us to see you wasting your time and energy in an impracticable cru sade-a movement which promises nothing to you and threatens the force bill and negro domination in several southern states.

Then, you make another mistake. At a time when hostile legislatures and courts have alarmed capital and caused the south to lose her credit, you stir up further trouble by taking the unwise posttion that the government should own and operate all the railways. Now, the democratic position in favor of the control of the railways through federal and state commissions is the only safe and just policy, and it will benefit and protect both railways and the people

Your financial plank is another mistake. You would have the government issue a currency to the extent of $50 per capita, and yet past experience should teach you that a national currency will drift to Wall street, no matter whether it is $20 or $50 per capita. What is your objection to the democratic state bank idea which would give you a good lovel currency of more than $50 per capita, and the provisions for its redemption would prevent it from drifting to Wall street and rev.sining there.

Think all this over, and, if you will go your way, try to speak no word that will add to the bitterness and confusion of a land torn by unhappy factional and sectional divisions, and threatened with social upheavals of an ordinary character. When you have tried your experiment, come back to the grand old party of Jefferson, and in union and harmony you will find that victory which you would throw away in an untimely and unfortunate division!

John Sherman wants to get rid of his silver law. But how is he going to do it? There seems to be a desire on the part of Colonel John A. Cockerill to convert Mr. Harrison to republicanism.

Miss Pussy L. Waugh, of Chicago, writes us that she and Eugene Field are preparing a republican campaign song book. We wish Miss Pussy and Mr. Field well, but our vice is too deep a bass to suit itself to nodern songs.

The third party people have a good op-portunity today to resolve themselves back into the democratic party. It is the only safe place for those who are opposed to re publicanism and its results.

Mr. Harrison has got a chairman for his republican committee at last. His name is Carter and he is a free coinage man. Carter, however, will be merely a dummy.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Wallace W. Johnson, a New York machinist, has returned from a visit to England. Wages are low, and the taxgatherer levies toll at every point. Mr. Johnson was engaged at a salary of $2,000 a year. He was told that it salary of $2,000 a year. He was told that it was equal to $2,800 here. He comes back confirmed in the opinion that he can live better in this country and enjoy more invuries on $1,200 per annum. He gives the facts and figures. Read them. His description of the condition of the tollers who are compelled to live on 25 shillings a week is harrowing. No meat for the little children, except once a week, until they become wage earners. A chop or a steak never seen on the table of a workingman. "Here," says Mr. Johnson, "a street car driver or conductor lives just as well as, and even better than, in some ways, the average well-to-do English merchant of the middle class."

the middle class."

A summary of the ceasus bulletin on homicides states that in June of 1890 the prison population of the United States was 82,389. Of these, 7,386 were charged with homicide, and of these 6,058 were men and 303 women. Some facts of interest to the southern people are revealed in the table giving homicidal prisoners by states and groups of states. In the south Atlantic group the total charged with homicide was 1,087, of whom 783 were negroes. In the south central group the homicides were 2,545, of whom 1,528 were negroes. That is to say, in the sixteen southern and border states, all the ex-slave states, except Missouri, the prisoners charged with homicide, June 1, 1890, numbered 3,632, of whom 2,311, or more than two-thirds of the total, were negroes. In those states the negro population is not quite a third of the total. Hence, these statistics show that the homicidal impulse in the southern negro manifests itself in the ratio of two and one-half to one, as compared to the whites; and these facts quite upset the theory of Mr. Frederick Douglass, that the negro in the south is, as a rule, only punished to gratify white tyranny and revenge. Even in the north central group, which contains only one state that has any considerable negro population—Missouri—the considerable negro population—Missouri—the proportion of negro homicidal prisoners is startlingly large, being 264 in a total of 1,796. In Ohio the total charged with murder in some degree was 217, and of these thirtydine were negroes; though the negro p ion is less than 7 per cent of the total lation, the race furnishes 18 per cent-nearly one-fifth-of the murderers. ADD EDITORIAL COMMENT ADD EDITORIAL COMMENT Says a well-known architect in The Philadelphia Press: "The days of towering steeples on churches and public buildings will soon be dropped, and well they should be. For years a tall steeple on a church was only a mark of competition to enable the next congregation if possible to erect their steeple a peg or two higher. They are very expendive things at best, and in a few years bea peg or two higher. They are very expensive things at best, and in a few years become very dangerous and are always targets for the highest winds and the lightning stroke. SOME GEORGIA GOSSIP.

Chairman Hobbs, of the democratic executive committee in Dougherty, is one of your strong-willed, uncompromising democrats. An old soldier, who left a limb in the war, he is a hero among the veterans of the confederacy wherever he is known; and since the war he has done great service to the state in the democratic ranks. Mr. Hobbs is a genial gen-tleman, a man of strong physique and personal tleman, a man of strong physique and personal mag elism, and is always ready to talk politics from a democratic standpoint. In answer to the question: "What is the outlook for the democrats in the second district?" he said, a few days since: "It will take hard fighting to whip the fight, but we have been fighting hard all along, and will continue on that line. Ben Russell has been a power for good in our district; he has worked day and night for the specess of democracy, and the people will the success of democracy, and the people will stand to him, man for man. We are going to whip the enemy."

One night last week, as Lawyer Vandiver, One night last week, as Lawyer Vandiver, of Rome, was returning from his fruitless Florida trip after the flown Lord Beresford, he noticed, on the deck of the Brunswick steamer, on which he was a passenger, a tall man in a dark cloak, standing apart from the rest of the passengers, as if to avoid notice. In an instant Mr. Vandiver recognized in the features of the mysterious stranger the missing lord, whose steps he had tracked through Florida. Mr. Vandiver's heart gave a throb of joy and triumph as he rushed forward and, laying his hands on the stranger's shoulder, said:

laying his hands on the stranger's shoulder, said:

The stranger eyed him a moment, thenwith offended dignity, walked away.

"He looked mightily like Beresford," said Mr. Vandiver, as he told the story in a Brunswick hotel, " and I was sure I had him; but evidently I was mistaken. The man would be mistaken for Beresford anywhere. He was the living image of him."

Mr. Vandiver has given up his search for the whereabouts of the absent lord.

"I think it would be a good policy," said a prominent Savannah democrat to The Press, of that city, "to give the state senator to Erfingham. I say good policy for this reason. We want the support of the outside counties for our congressman. We want to propitiate all possible irritation between country and city. We want the farmers to remain faithful to the democratic party, and it appears to me that no better way can be opened than to give the state senatorship from this district to one of the smaller counties. I said good politics suggests this. More than that, good sense suggests this. More than that, good sense suggests this. More than that, good sense suggests the the same and this district in the senate. Before he moved to Effingham he was sent to the legislature, I think, from Washington county. He has always shown ability, conversatism, and strong sense. He is a man whose democracy is unshaken; he has been a power against the vagaries of the third party, and yet he has many friends in the alitance. He is popular in Effingham. I think Savannah's interests could not possibly suffer by being confided to grach a man event. "I think it would be a good policy," said a

There is no doubt that we can in this way secure a most creditable collection of animals, and, as we are a community with a reputation of never doing anything by halves, there should be a readiness on the part of all of us to do our best to increase the attractions of the zoo.

Let Mr. Sidney Root or Mr. G. V. Gress take the initiatory steps in this matter, and they will find a rendy response from the general public to their efforts. Let us have a zoo that will be the pride of the south, and let The Constitution be the medium of bringing about this result.

It was reported at the police station early in the morning that Tom Daniels, a young railroader and former companion of Fred Reynolds, had gone to the place early in the day and carried Minnie Reynolds off by force. Doubt has even been expressed whether he is of the requisite agetwenty-live—to go to the senate. Mr. Morgan is a brilliant and popular young man, and he would have a strong following for any position he cared to run for. It may be, however, that by his youth he is "barred by the statute." "Hon. Walter G. Charlton could have the place if he wanted it," said a well-posted man in Savannah this morning. "I do not think there would be any trouble on that score. I have not heard that he cared to go to the senate. Mr. Charlton has been spoken of for presidential elector from the state at large. Mr. R. D. Gwerard is squarely out for the house. His friends have urged him to run and he has consented. He is a representative business man and will make a strong race. People have confidence in him and you will see the young men will rally to his support on all sides. He is a large property holder and taxpayer. permitted to prevent other laborers not in their union from working and earning an honest living.

"It might be pertinent to ask some of the statesmen from my section who are disturbed about the despotism of capital crushing down honest labor what their position would be if the colored plantation hands in a county or congressional district should organise a union, demand hours of work and wages to suit themselves, and put armed guards around the plantations to keep non-union negroes from working? How long would the capitalists owning the plantations submit to such interference from labor? Would those statesmen ask congress to appoint a committee to go at once to the plantations and investigate the alleged outrages of capital against labor? "If the local governments are too weak to prevent labor unions from restraining by violence men who are not members of their union from working outside of it, then we are at the beginning of a revolution which will establish a despotism in place of this republic."

Three able democrats are in the field striving for the nomination, and as between them we voice not even a preference, for each one is able to fill the winc with credit to the fifth congressional cutrict of Georgia. But we believe in giving each one a fuir showing to get before the people, and this is not asking more than democratic custom requires. Judge Hillyer and Colonel Hulsey are in the field of contest, and will have plenty of time to canvass the county.

tleman (Mr. Miller) making the proposal seems to understand what he is talking about, and speaks with positiveness as to what he can do. It seems to me that some of those chief promoters of our zoo should take up the subject and at least give it the courtesy of an investigation. For one, I am in favor of any plan that looks toward increasing the value and interest of the zoo, and believe it to be one of Atlanta's attractions that is being neglected. If any one will go out there and observe the deep and thrilling interest the children all take in these animals, and the immense pleasure it affords them, he could not hesitate in giving a hearty approval to any worthy scheme for increasing the number of animals and other attraction.

With such a large increase in the number of animals, the managers might be justified in charging a small entrance fee to aid in defraying the expenses. Cincinnati in this way makes her zoological garden self-sustaining.

AT THE EDGEWOOD

Second Presentation of "The Merry War" Last Night by the MacCollin Company. The second presentation of "The Merry War" was given last night at the Edgewood Avenue theater by the MacCollin company in a manner that is calculated to make this opera very popular in Atlanta. Last night's rendition was a decided improvement over the performance of the night previous and "The Merry War" bids fair to continue winning the admiration and approbaion of its auditors.

continue winning the admiration and approbation of its auditors.

A very interesting feature of "The Merry War's" production are the elegant military costumes. The costuming is no doubt the finest of the kind ever seen south.

There are a good many surprises promised in the presentations of this opera and the Edgewood's patrons may expect several pleasant innovations at the hands of the MacCollin aggregation in its present work. You will no doubt be greatly pleased with "The Merry War," and a visit to the Edgewood to hear it suing will be of advantage to all lovers of comic opera. Last night's house was a fishionable and a thoroughly appreciative one, and it was highly entertained, judging from the enthusiasm manifested.

The orchestral support has been considerably strengthened within the past few days, and now the melodies of the MacCollin repertoire are beautifully and sweetly defined.

Mr. Pearson and the splendid quartet composed of Messrs. Hines, Worth, Page and Evans, in the "Old Brigade" song attracted no little attention. This is one of the few remarkable instances where a comic opera basso receives three and four encores, but such was the case last night, and Mr. Pearson's popularity grows stronger every day. What an Edgewood audience wants is more Pearson.

son's popularity grows stronger every day. What an Edgewood audience wants is more Pearson.

Mr. Apple clearly proved himself a versatile young tenor. In the role of Umberto the music is very trying on the voice, yes Mr. Apple observes the proper method of singing and sings his part most acceptably. Miss Hall as Elsa was very fine. It is true Miss Hall has more acting in this role than singing to do, but she is fully equal to the emergency and does her work splendidly.

Miss Caseday's singing is of a pleasing character and her interpretation of Violetta strikes her audience very forcibly.

Miss Taylor, Miss Lillie Hall, Mr. MacCollin, Mr. Leonard, Mr. Burrows and Miss Leyton were especially good.

"The Merry War" is beginning to go with a snap and dash and tonight's performance of this catchy opera will be given in a clear-cut manner.

ABOUT THE COURTHOUSE,

One of his last communications, over the signature of "Silver Dollar," purports to have been written in Washington city, under date of July 16th, but it was set up in type that same night here in Atlanta and printed in your excellent journal at daylight the next morning, July 17th. If Uncle Sam's mail really brought that letter all the way from Washington to Atlanta, with the rapid speed necessary to such a feat, then all I have got to say is that Uncle Sam's mail certainly beat the record this time.

The democratic platform does not say that the silver dollar should have in it six hundred or more grains of silver, nor do I say so. But there should be in it enough to make the silver dollar equal to the gold dollar.

The republican party is the party of monopoly and of scarce money and the single gold standard; the third party is the party of base money; the democracy, with wisdom and justice, stands on middle ground between the two for gold and silver both, and with the ratio between the two metals properly adjusted, as required by the constitution, and such coinage of the metals minted without cost, and equal in value, freely passing among the people, in honest payment for honest labor and product. It is no new thing to readjust the ratio between the two metals, and it is thoroughly democratic to do so whenever the changing exigencies of time and the occasion require. The ratio was changed by act of congress in 1834, when Andrew Jackson (old Hickory) was president.

When we have a democratic senate and a democratic bouse and democratic senate and a sena Both branches of the city court were in session yesterday.

The issue before Judge Van Epps that op cupied the entire morning, was the sub- of W. D. Wilson against the Consolidated Railroad Company. It was claimed by the attorneys for the road that the case of Mr. Wilson was not a good one for the reason that he had lost his limb when the line was operated by the Metropolitan, and he had brought his suit against the Consolidated. They moved accordingly for a non-suit.

The attorneys for the plaintiff argued that the Consolidated and the Metropolitan were the same thing, and that the objection of the other side was immaterial, as it made a distinction without a difference. The judge however, refused to decide the issue, and referred it to the jury. The case will be resumed or non-suited this morning, as the jury decides in favor or against the plaintiff. The ratio was changed by act of congress in 1884, when Andrew Jackson (old Hickory) was president.

When we have a democratic senate and a democratic house and democratic Grover Cleveland for president democracy will reform the tariff, defeat the force bill and give the people free coinage of both gold and silver, with the proper relative weight of both metals, whatever that may be, in each coin to make the money good and to keep it good in the hands of the people.

On tomorrow Cleveland and Stevenson will receive official notification of their election. In their official incification of their election. In their official interances on that occasion light and emphasis will be given on true democratic ideas on all these subjects. I stand with the democratic party, for the democratic candidates, on the democratic platform. When the party speaks that is smitclent, and all loyal democrats should touch elbows in the ranks and march to the muste of democratic triumph. Do either of my opponents say more? Or can they be sustained if ther say least Or can they be sustained if ther say least Respectfully,

'Already some little differences are creeping in among the people's party politicians.

There may be some fun in the convention today after all if the way some of the delegates spoke yesterday means aught.

It is generally understood that there will be a state ticket put out by the convention.

I shall oppose a movement to put him out and am going to urge it upon my brothers of the new party not to make useless antagonisms in this business.

The platform will be a sensation.

Among the things that will be condemned is the present convict lease system of the state. There seems to be no doubt but that such a plank will be in the platform.

And there is another plank condemning "a money qualification for suffrage," which means a fight on the poll tax.

It is easy to see the purpose of this plank in the platform of the third party, it is intended as a rope to pull in the negro vote, so the thinking, discerning politicians say.

The platform will demand a state income The platform will demand a state income tax for school purposes.

The third partyites will in their platform condemn the sale of Georgia bonds at 1011-16 by Governor Northen and Colonel R. U. Hardeman treasurer, when those bonds the document declares were worth

This will be a sensational feature of the sensational platform upon which the voters of Georgia will be asked to stand. The platform will be interesting reading.

Mr. A. G. Dam.

Well, well!

What's going to happen?
Senator Ellington, of McDuffie, is here with the third party badge upon his coat.

When Colonel Branch (some of the boys call him "general" now) takes charge of the convention today as temporary chairman, things will knuckle down to business.

Mr. Zack Respess, of Taylor county, is one of the delegates to the convention. He was formerly reporter and correspondent for The Savannah News, and was a clever and promising newspaper man. He says that in his county 65 per cent of the people are in favor of the third party.

Dr. J. L. Nance, of Gainesville, is prominent among the delegates.

An Enthusiastic Meeting of the Third Party Delegates Last Night-Some Hopeful Speeches.

The delegates to the third party conven-tion indulged in a little preliminary skirmishing last night.

Their opening guns were noisy, plentifully charged with powder. They were harmless guns, however. Anybody within three squares of 271-2 Alabama street last night could have heard a succession of loud yells between the hours of 8 and 11 o'clock.

The yelling was being done in Emmet hall, and about two hundred and fifty third party delegates had a mouth in it.

The senting capacity of the hall wasn't half sufficient for the number of delegates, and many stood up through the meeting. The room was oppressively hot—a veritable sweat box—and when the numerous orators came forward they always prefaced their remarks by pulling off their coats and rolling up their sleeves.

The makeup of the crowd was striking. Every face was sunburned, and there were none of the kid-glove variety of human beings present. Just from the plowhandles, with hands hardened with toil, and faces rugged, they looked little like politicians.

Misguided and deluded as they may be

Misguided and deluded as they may be, these men gathered in Johnson's hall last night are not bad men. They are honest men, and they are dreadfully sincere. Their dress was of the simplest; there are no airs about them; many of them speak in cracker dialect, but there is an honest purpose in every one of their hearts.

They are enthusiastic beyond all bounds. They are gone mad with this people's party idea. With many, it has taken the place of religion. One enthusiastic delegate declared last night "that a dose of people's party was about as good as to get religion."

Last Night's Meeting.

Last Night's Meeting.

The meeting was called to order last night by H. Kramer, of the People's Party Club of this city.

There were over two hundred men in the hall when the meeting opened, and nearly all had their coats off.

Mr. D. N. Sanders, of The People's Party Paper, was the first speaker, and his remarks were followed by Mr. S. H. Walker. The latter made a very radical speech, betraying great animosity toward the demogratic nearty.

Mel Branch Entertains Them. Mel Branch was next introduced. This olly delegate mounted the stand radiant his witted collar, shirt sleeves, and his

His enthusiasm was too great, and it impeded his delivery. He got in some good, effective, gesture work, however, that spoke well for the Omaha convention. make. It was a little off, but the crowd liked it, and when he sat down on the edge of the platform he got a royal ovation. He said he was for the people's party because the people were for it.

G. P. Harris, ex-member of the legislature from Catoos county, was called out.

G. P. Harris, ex-member of the legislature from Catoosa county, was called out. He mounted the stand, having previously divested himself of his coat and collar and supplied himself with a big fan.
"We are going to set up with the democrats this summer," he said; "we are going to have barbecues, eat watermelons, and electricate with warry votes.

"I said not long ago that I now have to double-lock my smokehouse for fear that the alliance democrats would steal all I had for they are thieves. They came very near running me out of the county for saying that. I didn't refer to all of them. I meant them that had betrayed the confidence of the people like Livingston has done."

Some other routine work was done before the committee adjourned.

The following programme has been arranged for the convention and made public in The Alliance Farmer as the official schedule of work for the convention today:

Comparison the uneasiness increased. Mr. A. G. Daniel asked Mr. Branch to take his seat but he refused. Then Mr. Daniel edged his way from the front back into the audience, and arose to a point of order, intended to cut off Mr. Branch's remarks.

"I want to give you some information," said Mr. Branch.

"We don't want any information of that kind. Speak of the future and not of the past," said Mr. Daniel, and the crowd echoed his words.

The hubbub became so great that Mr. Branch was forced to sit down.

Other Speakers.

Then the call of districts was begun, starting with the first to receive reports of the progress of the movement.

Mr. Miller, of Chatham, a scholarly-looking, curly-haired, and spectfacled gentleman of a mild temperament spoke for the first district. He said the third party would poil 1,000 votes in Chatham out of the 7,000 voters in the county.

"We are in a hopeless minority," said he. "The workingmen down there are afraid of the force bill. It will take hard work to carry the first."

The second district was called.

"Trot 'im out," yelled an enthusiastic delegate. "This is a regular experience meeting. I think I'll have to join the Methodists."

A fellow in the rear stood up in a chair and pledged Worth and Colquitt counties to the people's party in the second.

F. D. Wimberly answered to the call off the third. He said the third party could carry six out of the thirteen counties in the third.

"By faith in the cause," he let out in a burst of eloquence, "and by hard work we intend to beat Crisp out of power. I consecrate myself to work to that end until the Ides of November."

In another burst he said:

"Be not deceived. Socialism, anar until the Ides of November."

In another burst he said:
"Be not deceived. Socialism, anarchism, communism and nihilism in Europe is but a phase of the alliance in America. Those men in Europe are desperate because they have lost all hope in life."

McGehee, of Talbot, who answered, poured cold water on the enthusasm of his hearers to such an extent that they called for another speaker.

"I see no hope there," said he. "I do not believe we can carry the fourth district. Moses carried it as an alliance democrat before and he'll do it again."

A Voice from the Fifth.

A NEW CEMETERY

Wanting.

HE MAKES HIS REPORT

To the General Council and Shows That the Ground Can Be Had-What Mr. Reneau Says About It-

If there is anything that Atlanta needs at the present time more than anything else it is a new cemetery.

There are many reasons assigned by the advocates of a new cemetery for the purchase of a suitable tract of land by the city as a burial ground for the dead, but the principal reason for such a step is found in the fact that Oakland is now crowded with

The city needs a burial ground for the rich and poor alike, a cemetery to be man-aged and regulated under the supervision of its own officers, and in which the hum-blest as well as the richest can feel that they have a sacred interest.

A resolution looking towards the selection of a suitable lot for the purpose of a cemetery was introduced in the city council about two months ago by Mr. Reneau. As the author of the resolution he was named as the chairman of the special committee and with two or three other members of the council was sutherized to look out. of the council was authorized to look out for a good selection and to make a reprt to the body.

The committee made its report last Mon-

The committee made its report last Monday and recommended the purchase of 300 acres of land situated just east of the Soldiers' Home. It was offered to the city at $200 an acre, or $60,000 for the entire piece of land. The payments to be made were $15,000 cash, payable the 1st of January, 1893, and $15,000 for each succeeding year until the purchase money was paid, the deferred payments bearing interest at 6 per cent per annum from the 1st of January, 1893. The parties offering the land to the city agreed in the event of the purchase to extend the dummy line to the cemetery and to give the city a schedule of not less than one car an hour from 7 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening. They also agreed to furnish a funeral car for the purpose of conveying the dead for the benefit of the city residents. The report met with objection on the ground that the city was not able to pay the amount, but after discussion by the members it was referred to the committee on finance, of which Mr. Rice is chairman. It is likely that, after considering the advantages of the offer and the profits to accrue to the city from the sale of the lots, that the committee will recommend an appropriation and move the adoption of the ordinance.

Councilman Reneau, who introduced the original resolution and who as chairman of the committee to look out for a site, has spent considerable time in going the rounds of the county with Mr. W. P. Hill, was seen yesterday afternoon in re-"It is the best offer," said he, "that the city will ever have and the purchase can be made without spending a dollar of the city's revenue. We can realize from the city will ever have and the purchase can be made without spending a dollar of the city's revenue. We can realize from the sale of 150 acres of the old waterworks property, at $400 an acre, enough to pay for the entire tract, but only enough is required to make the payment of $15,000 the first of January. The proceeds arising from the sale of the lots will be sufficient and over for meeting the additional payments as rapidly as they can mature."

"Now about using the old waterworks for a cemetery?" the question was asked.

"A number were in favor of the old waterworks," said he, "but after looking into the matter it was found that the law prohibited the location of a cemetery within four miles of the passenger depot."

"What about the objection raised to the location of the tract outside of the county limits?"

"It consulted with Mr. Hill before the report was made and he gave it as his opinion that nothing was in the way of locating the cemetery in DeKalb. It is not likely that the county would tax the cemetery simply because it belonged to Atlanta, when cemeteries are everywhere excluded from taxation."

"It is a natural necessity," continued he, "that Atlanta should control a cemetery in the interest of her citizens and sell the lots to the people at the actual cost of keeping them up. If a poor mechanic who works for his daily bread and depends tery in the interest of her citizens and sell the lots to the people at the actual cost of keeping them up. If a poor mechanic who works for his daily bread and depends upon her weekly earnings for the support and maintenance of his family, happens to die, his wife is obliged to send his remains to another place or bury her dead in the pauper's lot. If she undertakes to buy an expensive lot she encumbers her home with a mortgage and shoulders a debt that she finds it difficult to overcome. The want of a cemetery for the poorer classes is driving a great many people away from Atlanta.

"The purchase of a tract of land that the committee has recommended will settle the question of a cemetery for a hundred years. The number of acres will accommodate an infinite number of graves and its distance from the city will give the latter an opportunity to spread without approaching for years the neighborhood of the cemetery. We are spending millions for the benefit of the living and it is nothing but right that we should spend a few thousand for the benefit of the dead."

GONE TO PIECES.

The Deshon Opera Company Preferred Rest to Salaries. Deshon's opera company has disbanded.

Mr. MacSweeney, Mr. Amsden and Mrs.
Amsden reached Atlanta yesterday. They came from Augusta, where the last performance was given on Monday night.

The company was suffering from too much prosperity. All the principals had saved up comfortable rolls of money and wanted to take a rest. Salaries had been paid promptly all through the engagement, and there was no complaint.

no complaint.

When the company left Atlanta it was stated that it would not be back here. The idea was to play it for a week with Carmencita, Gautier and the Spanish students, and then to play three weeks more in the smaller towns without the special attractions. Last week was one of excellent business.

But the company wanted to rest. Mr. Mac-Sweeney made the first emphatic protest. He didn't want to get in the cooper's barrel in "Boccaccio" one night, and he didn't get in. On Monday night there was a feitly good. didn't want to get in the cooper's barrel in "Boccaccio" one night, and he didn't get in. On Monday night there was a fairly good house in Augusta. The proceeds were given to the chorus girls, who had not saved up like the principals.

Mr. Deshon has gone north. Some of the company will remain here in Atlanta for the present.

Working for Their Father.

Misses Clara and Lillie Morris are two charming, and at the same time highly deserving, young ladies, who arrived in Macon yesterday on a very interesting and commendable mission. These young ladies are securing subscribers for The Herald of Health, a valuable monthly journal of health, published at Kinston, N. C., by Dr. O. H. Hyatt, who is an invalid. The paper is full of interest, and will prove of the greatest value in every household, as it contains just those things which every one who desires to keep healthy should know, but which so many do not know. Aside from this, it has other features of interest. The plucky young ladies who are doing this work are the sole support of their invalid father, and deserve all the encouragement that can be given them.

MORE ABOUT IT.

Busy Industries.

AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW ON IT:

He Thinks It Only a Question of Time Before Organization Will Obtain—En-couragement the Word.

It is now only a question of time before the merchants and loyal business men of Atlanta will organize to encourage manufactories in the city. The Constitution's attempt to awaken new life and spirit in the manufacturing nterests of Atlanta has not been fruitless and the same spirit that has in days gone by exempted manufactories of taxation and built great enterprises that go to make self with as much zeal as ever.

The truth is clear that manufactories the city constitute her chief pride.

They have been the making of Atlanta and will continue so just as long as they are fostered and new ones temptingly in-

Every wide-awake business man can easily realize this, and has indeed, already real zed it. They do not intend that this ture of municipal development shall be neg-lected. They have fallen into line on the questions suggested by leading manufac-turers and business men through the col-nmns of The Constitution and are now talkng up some definite plan whereby these suggestions to encourage the factories in their great work of building up the city can be put into operation.

What Is the Remedy?

Now, what is to be done? "It is pretty well agreed and understood by all of Atlanta's enterprising business men that we need more industries, more factories and more machine shops," said Mr. J. G. Oglesby, of the well-known firm of Oglesby & Meador, yesterday. "Now, what we want," he continued, "is to adopt some plan to bring to bear proper encouragement for all our old manufact ories and also to make such propositions to all incoming industrial enterprises as ma seem meritorious. "We do not care for any manufactory as an investment unless it be a good one, a prosperous one, one that will do our city good. It would be a suicidal policy to lend good. It would be a suicidal policy to lend our capital and our favor to establishments that are unworthy of it. But, if they are sound and worthy then I am heartily in favor of granting them every favor they may reasonably ask to come here, and I am also in favor of making it as easy for those already here as we can.

Here's a Good Idea. Here's a Good Idea.

"I think the business men of Atlanta are as quick to unite for the good of their city as any men I have ever known of, and I don't think they will fall short in this matter which The Constitution has so commendably put forward.

"I am in part the author of a plan which we came near putting into operation some we came near putting into operation some few years ago to form a company of men of means—that is to say, active business men—to look after our manufacturing interests.

"They were to form a funded company offer to take steek in any legitimete are worthy enterprise that should chance want to come here.

"Memphis caught on to our plan and is now operating it to great advantage. Why can't Atlanta do the same? I would like very much to see the plan taken up and pushed for all it is worth here in Atlanta.

As to the Tores

As to the Taxes.

"By the way, we have a tax committee in our Commercial Club recently formed of which Captain Evan P. Howell is chairman. I think a great deal of good may come out of that committee's work.

"I should think after looking into the tax question they will find themselves not only capable of making petitions to the city authorities, but of showing to those authorities such claims as will secure a reduction of taxation on the manufacturers."

VERY, VERY PRETTY. Grand Duchess Is Just That Very Thing.

Clever enough was the Fay Templeton com-pany in "The Grand Duchess" last night at DeGive's. No prettier nor more enjoyable opera has been presented in Atlanta for a long, long time.

"The Grand Duchess" is not only "catchy" and attractive, but as presented by Fay Templeton's company it is so sweetly sung and so cleverly acted that it is simply entrancing.

With pretty Miss Templeton, always bright and vivacious; Misses Vandyck, Clark and Smith, charming not alone in that they are beautiful, but as artistes as well; Messrs. Charles Drew, William Blaisdell and Grady in the cast; with perfectly beautiful costumes, rich and fine in every make-up; with good music and good acting, "The Grand Duchess" last night scored a great hit. No opera has been received with more genuine appreciation on the part of an Atlanta audience for quite a while.

Repeated encores showed that the play was extremely enjoyed.

Miss Templeton sang the song of the duchess, "Oh. Say to Her," so pleasingly and with such plaintive sweetness in her voice that she was kept for several minutes bowing and smilling in happy response to deserved applause.

Charley Drew is always a hit in whatever plause.

Charley Drew is always a hit in whatever role he appears. Particularly is this true of him when acting Fritz, and he is already a toast with Atlanta theatergoers.

Today's Matinee.

There will be a matinee today, at which 'The Grand Duchess' will again be presented. It will be presented also tonight.

Tomorrow night 'Erminie' will be given by this spiendid company, and the fact that the widows will dance their clever little dance again that night is enough to warrant the prediction that the house will be crowded, saying nothing of the pretty opera itself, always a favorite. Today's Matines was yesterday.

George has been arrested lots of times in his career—and he is yet a young man. But nearly every time he has come out safe and

He was arrested last week for robbery, and was put under a two-hundred-dollar bond to answer the charge in the superior court. He claimed that his arrest was due to a personal enmity against him by one of the de-sonal enmity against him by one of the detectives.

He was already under a one-thousand-dollar bond for a case similar to the lass one, which had never been tried.

Monday night Patrolman McCoy made the case against Roberts for disorderly conduct, and he was locked up.

The case was tried before the recorder yesterday, and he was fined $25.75.

Roberts decided to go to the stockade instead of paying the mornix his bondamen in the two state cases came to the police station and instructed Acting Chief Wright to surrender Roberts to Sheriff Morrow when he was released from the city prison. He had signed both of Roberts's bonds, but desired to be no longer responsible for him.

So when George Roberts gets out of the stockade, which he may do today, he will either give a new bond(or go to jail.

It's thought, however, that he will have no trouble securing a new bond.

grow out of the controversy over the pos-session of Southern Life. A few days ago Mr. Sam Hall began a suit to compel Lamar, who has been editor and manager of the paper of which Mr.

Hall is principal proprietor, to comply with a contract previously made.

The hearing in that case is to come up before Judge Richard H. Clark today. Yesterday afternoon the case took a new turn when Mr. Hall went before Justice Landrum and swore out a warrant charg-ing Mr. Lamar with larceny after trust, appropriated certain funds of the paper. It was rather late before Lamar wa found, but as soon as he was served by the bailiff he repaired to Judge Landrum's office and executed a bond for $200 to appear this afternoon and answer to the ac-

What Lamar Save. In reference to this case Mr. Lamar said: "Mr. Sam Morgan Hall some time since threatened to take action of the above character unless he was immediately paid certain moneys. As I regarded the demand in the light of an attempt to bulldoze me I declined to accede to it, and notified Mr. Hall that all transactions between us must Hall that all transactions between us must in the future be conducted through the medium of my attorney, Hon. W. C. Glenn, whose advice was to make no payments to Mr. Hall except under order of Hon. Richard H. Clark, before whom the controversy was then being litigated. I am able, ready and willing to comply with the terms of any order the court may pass concerning the matter, and fully appreciate and understand the necessity there is upon Mr. Hall's part to use the criminal courts if possible to get rid of the civil case now pending between us, and which is to be heard at 10 o'clock tomorrow, when all the facts will come out."

There's Fun Ahead.

There's Fun Ahead. Some fun may yet grow out of this con-

Some run may yet grow out or troversy.

Mr. Lamar has prepared, it is understood, a very lively answer to the allegations made in the original bill. In these he will pay his respects to Mr. Hall and Mr. Jonas in a way they are not likely to relish. Lamar says so, at least.

Both cases come up today.

He Valued His Dog.

Augusta, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—Mr. John D. Moss will sue the city of Augusta for $500 damages for the killing of his dog. Policeman Prescott, who was out today shooting unlicensed dogs, killed Mr. Moss's pup on the street. Atlanta now has a Dr. Parkhurst and is no less a person than Rev. Virgil C.

For the past few months the New York for the past few months the New Modeliles have been filled with accounts of Dr. Parkhurst's crusade against vice, and although there has been grave question as to his methods he has wielded a great

Now, Dr. Norcross, Atlanta's well-known minister, proposes to take up just such a work in Atlanta as Dr. Parkhurst has been work in Atlanta as Dr. Parkhurst has been doing in New York.

Dr. Norcross fired the opening volley in the campaign which he has begun in a sermon to his congregation last Sunday. In that sermon he criticized the police authorities in the severest terms and said they had the remedy to prevent these houses of ill fame from huddling around a church if they would only apply it.

thorities in the severest terms and said they had the remedy to prevent these houses of ill fame from huddling around a church if they would only apply it.

He did not confine his remarks to the moral side of the question. He spoke of it from a legal point of view. He had the law there in his pulpit and read it out of the city code. He also had the oath the policemen have to take when they go on the force and he thought they had violated that oath.

At the close of his sermon he placed a memorial before his congregation and asked all who would to sign it. It was directed to the police board and its requests were very simple. It simply asked that the police be instructed to observe their oaths in reference to that section of the city code regulating lewd houses,

It is Dr. Norcross's idea that these houses must be wiped out. He don't go much on having them removed from one quarter of the city to another. He wants them to be run out of the city.

Since Sunday the memorial has been going the rounds and it has picked up nearly five hundred signatures.

Dr. Norcross thought that was about enough and yesterday he called on Acting Chief of Police Wright and showed him

Dr. Norcross thought that was about enough and yesterday he called on Acting Chief of Police Wright and showed him the petition and outlined the line of action he intended to pursue in regard to the matter of lewd houses.

He said he was going to present the petition to the police board and was then going to inaugurate a crusade against disreputable houses in the city. He did not intend to confine his fight to any one section of the city. He wanted every house in the city removed and he wanted the police to make it so warm for them that they would not locate on any other street

Dr. Norcross's work has already begun to bear fruit. Three houses near his church have been broken up and the inmates will get out today.

He is sincere and determined in his fight and he promises to furnish the public something to think about.

Dr. J. M. McNeel, the delegate from Telfair, has good reason to feel proud of his se-lection, as he is the youngest delegate in the convention. He is an active worker in the ranks of the people's party. He will be heard from today.

THE NEW YORK MARKET The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The duliness in the stock market continued unabated today and seldom has there been a day when transactions possessed so little interest from all points of view. There is no disposition to buy and almost a total absence of selling orders. Even the traders are for the time being out of the market. Prices were prac-tically unchanged at the opening and remain-ed so throughout the day in most of the list. Cordage advanced a fraction, while Sugar lost a like amount in early dealings, but there was nothing which could be called a feature until well into the afternoon, when the exe-cution of a few orders in New York Central and Lake Shore ran each of them up about 1 per cent. The buying was for investment and was soon satisfied, and then the market guickly resumed its normal dull and listless nce. The close was stagnant at about ices, the Vanderbilt stocks mentioned list scarcely changed from last evening. Sales of listed, 53,000 shares; unlisted, 7,000 shares.

Exchange quiet and steady at 458 4489/5; commercial bills 456/46488.

Governments dull and heavy 4a 115%.

market seems to require some decisive news to move it one way or the other and people are hoping that something will turn up to bring about some sort of speculation. The anti-option bill is before the senate this The anti-option bill is before the senate this affernoon and if the bill should pass that body, which we do not believe it will, prices of stocks will be affected, and also of produce. Reading was slightly affected, as the suits instituted in New Jersey came up today. The argument will probably last several days. A large short interest was again apparent in Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, but the stock did not gain in price.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, July 19—A fair volume of business was transacted on the board today despite the fears of traders in connection with the expected consideration of the Hatch bill by the seniate today. In the wheat pit the advices were generally bullish, but the anti-option bill exerted a depressing influence and checked what might otherwise have been a decided bull market, and prices at the close were unchanged from yester-days market.

and prices at the close were unchanged from yester-day's market.

Corn lost ½0, being weak on warm weather, the rapid improvement reported in the condition of the crop and free realizing sales.

Oats acted in sympathy with corn.

There was some realization by the provision clique which resulted in lower prices for that product.

The Tragic Life of a Brilliant Gen-

NEPHEW OF PRESIDENT POLK.

The Terrible Misfortune That Befell Him at the Battle of Perryville-His Fall as Treasurer.

The decision of the Tennessee chancer, court, declaring the will of ex-President Polk null and void, and that Polk place, which the ex-president attempted to devise in trust to the state as a tomb for himself and as a residence for the worthlest of the name of Polk, must go to the heirs, of the name of Polk, must go to the heirs, invites special attention to the law, that "rule of action" which governs our lives, liberties and property, and it emphasizes the uncertainty which hangs over the acts and opinions of the most eminent lawyers who may be employed to put legal safeguards around our most important actions. Here was a man who held the exalted position of chief masistrate of the American. of chief magistrate of the American nation, himself a lawyer of high standing, whose solemn act to dispose of his property a fitting manner is brought to empty nathingness over forty years after his

Now that this perplexing question is set-tled by the highest legal authority, the problem arises who would have been the fortunate heir had the will of the ex-president been executed according to his unique desire? Those in the confidence of James K. Polk, and knowing ones of his family, thought that this will was made in the interest of Marshall Polk, a much-loved neohew.

James K. Polk, and knowing ones of his family, thought that this will was made in the interest of Marshall Polk, a much-loved nephew.

Young Polk was a most promising member of this distinguished family, and it was generally conceded that in him the fondest hopes of the ex-president would be realized; and that the young West Pointer would prove himself "the worthiest of the name" and inherit the old homestead. The life of Marshall Polk was brilliant as it was tragic. He graduated at the West Point Military academy with distinction in 1853, numbering among his friends and classmates Stoneman, Davidson, Sheridan, Cosby and many other men who have filled high places in times of war and peace. He was appointed lieutenant in the First regiment dragoons, and served with that regiment in New Mexico, Oregon and California. He resigned the rank of captain in the United States army in 1861, and joined in the rebellion, casting his lot with the boys in gray of his native state, and was at once promoted to the rank of colonel, for he was popular in the old army.

Colonel Polk was a remarkably handsome man; with the bearing of a cavalier, he coupled the courage of a true southern gentleman; born to conquer, his sword was of tempered steel, double-edged to his adversaries—a willow wand, tipped with silver, to his comrades. He was the wit of after-dinner circles. Good cheer was the watchword wherever this magnetic man lingered. Genial, talented and brave, "Marsh" Polk might have been "the worthiest of the name." but for the terrible misfortune which befell him at the battle of Perryville. He was badly wounded in that engagement, and taken a prisoner to a federal hospital in Evansville, Ind.

Colonel Polk was never the master of invective, and courted fear rather than love. On this occasion he paid his respects to the federal surgeons swore vengeance against him. While his wound was serious, it was by no means considered an incurable one; but the leg of an insolent colonel of the blue-blooded south was too tempting a morsel to so amputation was declared positively necessary.

Colonel Polk protested and pleaded for time that his division surgeon might be consulted and his leg saved; but no time nor quarter was allowed him. Finding himself solely at the mercy of the federal sugeons, with no hope of any mercy being extended, he procured a revolver through the assistance of a Tennessee lady who at that time was a citizen of Evansville. The hour for the desperate work arrived. Bandages were in readiness and the surgeons stood in waiting around the room. As they approached his bedside he drew the revolver from its hiding place under his pillow and dared the enemy to carry out "their butchery," swearing that he would shoot the first man of them who carry out "their butchery," swearing that he would shoot the first man of them who attempted to violate his person. The desperate bravery of the rebel made the surgeons more determined. A full supply of anaesthetics was brought into service and admisistered by means of atomizers. The strong arm was soon powerless and the loyal tongue speechless. Then the diabolical work was carried into operation which came near proving fatal to the unfortunate confederate.

The limb was amputated for above the confederate.

The limb was amputated far above the knee joint. When consciousness returned the prisoner was a raving madman for days, weeks and months, his life hung by a thread, and strong arms were necessary to keep him from doing himself personal violence. He refused all nourishment, and in his rational moments he would pray to diepitifully declaring that he would rather be dead than to live with his body so mutilated. But death does not always come to those who mourn. The naturally strong body labored and finally yielded to treatment, but the brilliant mind of Marshall Polk was no more.

After many months of dreary hospital ment, but the brilliant mind of Marshall Polk was no more.

After many months of dreary hospital life, through the influence of a comrade of the regular army, then 'a prominent federal general, Colonel Polk was exchanged and sent through the federal lines to the headquarters of his relative, General Leonidas Polk, in Shelbyville, Tenn. General Polk had his private puarters at the handsome home of Mr. William Gosling. Colonel "Marsh" Polk was received in his pleasant abode, and surrounded with every comfort. The entire household devoted to the maimed soldier the kindest attention. His revovery, however, was very slow; there was even a disposition to shun society; only intimate, personal friends were received. The former genial man had been changed into a morose misanthrope, and the only person who could happily interest his wandering mind, and cause a smile to radiate from the marble countenance was young Harry Lee Gosling, the bright and intelligent fourteen-year-old son of the happy household.

Colonel Polk was specially fond of the less his young companion was near him. The attachment was mutual and young Gosling faithfully served his unfortunate friend until the levely wife and daughter came through the lines to minister to their loved one. The confederate army advanced and Colonel Polk and family were compelled to leave Shelbyville for a place of safety within the confederate lines.

Amidst the terrible clash of arms, the roar of cannon, and the many sad scenes of death and suffering, persons and events were soon forgotten; but somehow I could never cease to remember this unfortunate man; his great, dreamy eyes and far-away, troubled look did so sadly impress me.

The war ended, Colonel Polk and family returned to their west Tennessee home, where it is hoped some rays of sunshine brightened again his life. Yes, it is said he was happy there. One cheery afternoon he and his beautiful baby boy were enjoying a frolic on the front veranda of his pretty home; the child was playing hiding his father's crutches. Some diversion happened and the crutches were not returned to their usual place by the colonel's side, who was quietly resting in his easy chair, enjoying a good cigar, when, without a moment's warning, he saw his idolized boy crawling to the edge of the high veranda. He reached for his crutches—alas! they were out of place, and without them he was as helpless as the infant. The little innocent heeded not the pleading of the agonized father, but in the twinkling of an eye his little form disappeared over the wall, one faint cry and all was over. The golden-haired darling had struck the stone pavement fifteen feet below—that night the little soul was in paradise.

The agony of the father can never be written; his ravings were heart-rending—the loss of his leg had lost him a son. Is it wonder that a man would be crazed under such circumstances?

Time came and went. The friends of Marshall Polk made him treasurer of the great state of Tennessee, and the last sad tragedy in this unfortunate man's life is still fresh in the minds of the pub worthiest of the name." Hasty preparations were made, and with his cousin, Vanleer Polk, and a servant, he left Nashville a fugitive.

As soon as it was known that Treasurer Polk had fied, all Tennessee was aroused. Telegrams were sent every police headquarters in the United States, and large rewards offered for his capture. Colonel Polk went direct to New Orleans disguised as a United States officer. He had many friends in the Crescent City, who assisted him and his party to reach the Mexican border. The reward offered for the treasurer's arrest was a very tempting one, and every crossing on the Rio Grande was heavily guarded. At the close of one sad day, just at nightfall, the way was thought to be clear. Colonel Polk and party rode to a secluded spot, and in a few moments would have been safe in Mexico.

The United States marshal and his posse had been watching all day, and seeing the party, dashed out from their hiding place demanding a halt. Colonel Polk in a measure resisted and gave an assumed name. After a few moments of sad reflection, the officer in command dismounted. Walking within speaking distance of the three men he said: "Colonel Marshal Polk, it becomes my painful duty as United States marshal of the western district of Texas to arrest you. I am none other than Harry Lee Gosling, the boy who once knew and loved you in Shelbyville, Tenn. I know you now, and believe, though I must discharge this, my painful duty, I am still your friend." Colonel Polk dismounted, the officer and the colonel clasped hands, strong men wept, and Treasurer Polk was Gosling's prisoner. The return was quickly made to Tennessee, Marshal Gosling showing every courtesy en route to his unfortunate prisoner. The ex-treasurer was now a broken-hearted old man, looking twenty years older than when he fled the state. He was never seen to smile again; refusing to talk, he brought no charges, neither attempted any defense, but "man proposes and God disposes."

Marshal Polk was pronounced by his physicians to be a dying man. He was moved to his home, and though safely guarded, his maily was allowed to attend him, and long before the trial came up which was to doom a man by the honored name of Polk to a felon's cell, the noble spirit of brave "Marsh" Polk was liberated and passed into the mirit world.

The Power of Public Opinion.

The Power of Public Opinion.

From The Boston Globe.

The New York Sun scoffs at the idea of compulsory arbitration of labor disputes like that at Homestead. But surely if two powerful nations like the United States and Great Britain can arbitrate a quarrel as big as that over the Alabama claims or the Behring Sen fisheries, it ought to be possible to force a settlement of quarrels between a few thousand mechanics and a score or two of their employers in the same way. It is possible, too, quit possible. The Sun asks: "Where is the force to compel arbitration to come from?" Public opinion is the force that will do it, and do it easily whenever it is roused to make the effort in dead earnest. The Carnegies, the Pinkertons and the strikers, all put together, are not strong enough to withstand Public Opinion, with a large P. and O. As soon as P. O. says that there shall be arbitration there will be arbitration.

A Fat Man's Exercise.

Very stout persons may sometimes be noticed glancing at other stout persons with a pleased expression that seems to say: "Well, I am not as stout as that, anyway," or "There is some one who is quite as stout as I am." Evidently it is a consoling thought, says London Tit-Bits. The French marshal, Vivonne, once indicated this feeling in a witty reply to the king. Vinonne and the Comte d'Auvergne were probably the most corpulent gentien, in the court at the time. "Marshal, you are really getting too fat," said the king. "You ought to take more exercise." "Your majesty does not know, then, that I take a great deal of exercise?" "No. What do you do?" "I walk around the Comte d'Auvergne three times every day." A Fat Man's Exercise.

A DEMON TREE.

The Strange Story of a Man-Eating

RELICS IN THE FORM OF HUMAN BONES.

The Experience of an Inquisitive English man Who Ventured Too Near. The Prayers of Pili-

In the latter part of the year 1867, says E. Ellsworth Carey, in The Honolulu Advertiser, I was commissioned by the Belgian government to find a certain rare wandering plant that was believed to grow on the higher slopes of Mauna Kea, a large extinct volcano situated on the northern part of Hawaii. I had a station built on one of the wooded slopes of the moun-tain, far away from any other habitation. My only companion was a native who had lived all his life on this part of the island. About twice a month he would visit the seacoast to obtain needful supplies for our camp. This native, who said that his ancestors were "big chiefs," whose bones lay secretly buried in caves on the mountain side was your all allows the said was recreated. side, was very old, although he could climb canyons and scale lava cliffs with wonder-ful agility.

During one of my botanizing excursions I passed by the mouth of a narrow canyon or gorge, and I asked Pili, the old native, if he had ever explored the same. Pili suddenly became interested in his pipe, and didn't know anything about the gulch, and did not understand what I said. This was rather strenge in Pili and This was rather strange in Pill, for natives generally know every rock and tree in the section where they live, and I knew Pili was lying when he said he did not understand me.

section where they live, and I knew Pili was lying when he said he did not understand me.

So, naturally, I determined to examine into the mysterious ravine. Some time after this I was walking with Pili down a gentle slope, when I saw a number of bones. Pili stopped. He walked back a few rods and sat down on a stump. Not a word would he say. I began examining the bones and for two hours or more puzzled my brain over a problem as I had never done before. What I found was this: A circular area of about one hundred yards in diameter, thickly covered with the bleached remains of birds, animals and human beings. These ghastly relics were scattered among the shrubs and grass. The larger bones were near the center; in fact, I found that the bones became gradually smaller as I approached the periphery of this circular boneyard. In the center of the circle was a well-like opening in the ground, from which emanated a sickening odor. No vegetation grew within fifty feet of this cavity. How came they bo he arranged about the central opening? These questions continually presented themselves, but they remained unanswerable. A deep mystery seemed to hang over the spot. It was growing dark. I heard Pili calling and hurried to him. He pointed in terror to the center of the bone-covered area. A shadow was thrown on the scene by a rising bank of clouds. But I declare that I saw rising from the pit a visible vapor, a column of visible fog or smoke or gas that was luminous. Spellbound, I gazed at the spectral column. Near the ground it had the appearance of a phosphorescent flame and gradually became fainter as it ascended. Your imagination will have to picture the unearthly phenomenon. Pili pulled at my arm and in silence we left the spot, and we did not loiter by the wayside.

As I was looking for a simple plant, and not blood-curdling manifestations, I was inclined to break camp and leave. But by morning my nerves were in better order, and I went back to the scene of my evening adventure. I could find no clue to the mystery and tery and the matter gradually went out of mind as I prosecuted my labors.

But I had occasion after a time to visit a spot near where I had seen the canyon about which Pili was so apparently ignorant. One evening I made known my intention to Pili to return to the place and to explore the gorge.

"When?" said Pili.

"In the morning," I replied.

Without a word the old native arose from his mat on the floor and departed. He was gone all night. He returned by sunrise, bearing on his shoulders a bundle. When gone all hight. He returned by sunrise, bearing on his shoulders a bundle. When we reached the canyon he stopped and unpacked his load. I saw a stone idol, curious in shape; he placed it on the ground, and then took a small pig from his bundle. Making a fire, he sprinkled something in the flames, muttered strange sounds and made symbols in the air with his fingers. The animal offering was placed before the idol. After he completed his strange rites he said that I might never come back, but he had done what he could to preserve my life. He would wait until the going down of the sun, and then, if I did not come back, he would wail for me as did his father long, long ago, when a son fell in battle. Then he sat down, covered up his head and was silent.

Then he sat down, covered up his head and was silent.

All this made me feel uncomfortable. The native of the Hawaiian islands are supposed to be Christianized, but in the time of danger or trouble many often turn to the discarded gods of their fathers. I knew Pili believed that great danger awaited any one who ascended the ravine. But I went. I had gone about a mile, when over the tops of the tree ferns I saw a waving mass of sea green foliage undulating in the wind. The object looked like a huge bunch of thick-leaved seaweed, and the peculiar motion of the same arrested my atthe wind. The object looked like a huge bunch of thick-leaved seaweed, and the peculiar motion of the same arrested my attention. I was over three hundred feet away from the curious object, and hurried to obtain a closer view. A wall of fera-covered lava about ten feet high stopped my course. Climbing up so that I just could see over the edge, I saw an object such as the eyes of civilized man never before beheld. Imagine a bunch of seaweed about twelve feet high; the edge of each piece lined with fine streamers which radiated in all directions and brembled like fine wire spirals; the whole object moving like the fringes of a sea anemone. I was wearing a heavy felt hat with a wide brim, and I pushed it back from my forehead to get a better view. As I moved my arm the strange object ceased quivering, and every vibrating antenna or streamer pointed directly at me. Just then my foot slipped from a jutting rock on which I was standing and I fell, but not before something cleaved the air with a horrible hissing noise and struck on my hat crown. I felt the force of a blow as I fell, and knew no more for a time. I regained consciousness after a short time, and lay in a partial stupor. The wall above me was stripped of its verdure, and I saw a long sinewy, snake-like object writhing, twisting and curling on the rocks. It had missed its prey, and a low angry hum filled the air.

Richmond—Fine weather after the long continued rain has given a new impetus to crops. Everything is badly in the grass, but farmers are working with unwonted energy.

Thomas—Excessive rains have injured cotton and tobacco. Pear shipments are going forward rapidly. Rains have prevented the free cutting of tobacco.

Clay—Farmers complain of much grass and no sunshine to kill it. There is some rust on cotton and corn is firing on sandy land. The outlook for cotton is not very favorable.

Ware—Corn is about made and fodder pulling has commenced; a good yield is now assured. Cotton will not average more than 60 per cent of a crop. Potatoes, sugar cane and peas promise well.

Brooks—Reports from different parts of the county are very encouraging. Crops are in fine condition and growing rapidly. No injury has been done by rains this week.—Chariton—Corn is about made. Cotton is grassy and backward. Potatoes and rice are in fine condition.

In fine condition.

Weather Crop Bulletin for Alabams.

Auburn, Ala., July 19.—(Special.)—The mean temperature for the past week was apparently about 3 degrees below the normal. The rainfall was very heavy, being several inches above the normal. There was very little sunshine and the days were cloudy, with heavy showers over the whole state. The precipitation was excessive in west Alabama, causing disastrous floods and much consequent suffering among the people and the stock along the Warrior and Tombighee rivers.

Capanin Wright, of Livingston, states that "cotton and corn on bottom lands in Sumter county have been injured to the amount of probably $150,000. The rainfall here for the past fifteen days in July amounts to 8.75 inches. Only twice in the last twenty-four years have we had more than this for the entire month of July. In 1872, July gave us ten inches, and in 1884 we had twelve inches for the same month."

Crops on lowlands all over the state are Weather Crop Bulletin for Alabama.

Crops on lowlands all over the state are badly damaged by high water. The increased acreage of corn, however, promises good average results, and on the uplands it is doing finely. The excessive rains have injured the fruit crop materially; grapes, peaches and melons are suffering for lack of sunshine, and are rotting badly. Farmers universally give gloomy reports about the cotton crop; in the sections where it is not ruined by floods it is running too much to "weed," and not putting on squares; it is also very grassy, and it will be difficult to clean the fields without injuring the plants.

rains also. Crops on low, poorly drained land have Crops on low, poorly drained land have suffered most from the wet weather. The grape crop is excellent. During the coming week the weather will be generally warm with occasional showers the first half.

Eastern District—The ground continues too wet to admit of work in the fields in most parts of this district, which is injurious to all crops and favorable for growth of weeds. The few days of warm weather after the cool spell and the rains have caused corn to fire in some places. Melons are damaged considerably. Rice is still doing well. Cotton suffers more than anything else from the wet weather.

The following rainfalls for the week are reported: Wilmington, 1.74 inches; Goldsboro, 0.67; Lumberton, 0.62; Newbern, 1.31; Weldon, 1.58; Southport, 0.85.

The Crops in Chattahoochee.

Cusseta, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—The fruit crop in this section was never finer than it is this year. Our people will soon commence to imitate the golden example of S. H. Rumph, of Marshaliville, and we hope before many years the little town of Cusseta will be made famous by some enterprising spirit here in the same manner that Mr. Humph has made fame for the little village of Marshaliville.

The corn crop in this section is as good as the land will make it, and the farmers have planted more largely of cereals than ever before. The cotton crop which has been very fine for the present year has been damaged incalculably by the recent heavy rains.

The Rice Crop.

Savannah, Ga., July 19.—(Special.)—Rice in the Savannah district continues in fine condition. The rains of the past two weeks have benefited it considerably, keeping the harvest water now on it sweet and tending to improve the quality. Planters are well pleased with the stands, and the outlook for a large crop is still regarded as very good. The yield gives promise of being greater than last year, in which case the decreased average will be more than made up.

EVERY LINE WILL BE ELECTRIC

The New Central Depot of the Consolida ted Company Will Shortly Be Compieted and Will Be an Ornament.

The Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway Company has given this city the finest street car service of any city in the south, but the half has not been told. Mr. Joel Hurt, the general manager of this magnificent system, has in contemplafacilities.

Only one lonely line is now supplied with horse cars and it will soon be a thing of the past. It is the Wheat street line, and just as soon as the more pressing work on the other lines is completed, it will be re placed by an electric car line equipment.

The work to be done at present is the finishing up of the track on Peachtree The laying of the asphalt, preparations for The laying of the asphalt, preparations for which have already begun, make it necessary that this be pushed through as rapidly as possible. The work of laying the track on this line between Ellis and Baker streets where asphalt is to be laid, began yesterday morning, and it will take but a very short time to push it through. Peachtree then will have electric cars as early as she gets asphalt. When the track is laid through on Peachtree the present route out Couriland avenue will be abandoned by the Peachtree cars. Most likely the Courtland avenue line will be extended to Ponce de Leon. This would be a good move as it would give another line to one of Atlanta's most popular Sunday suburban resorts.

Another Line to the Fark.

When the work on Peachtree is completed Mr. Hurt will turn his attention to building a line to Grant park, entering the park over Grant street, and perhaps connecting with the Capitol avenue line by way of Jones street.

That New Benot.

Yesterday morning a heavy force of hands began work on the new central depot to be built by the Consolidated. The depot is to be on the site of the old street car stables between Exchange place and Edgewood avenue. All the old cars and the new cars not in use were taken out to
